

Hospital chief says the turnover of staff is natural

A&E NURSES QUIT OVER CONCERNS

Report by Dayna Farrington

A NUMBER of senior nurses have resigned from Russells Hall Hospital amid fears over patient safety and poor management, it is claimed.

It is believed that eight members of staff from the A&E department have quit in the last few weeks.

It is also claimed that more than 20 nurses have left since the start of 2018.

The Dudley Group NHS Foundation Trust – which runs the hospital – has not confirmed the claims.

It comes only days after senior medical staff at the hospital hit out over 'bullying, bed closures and failure to investigate urgent patient safety'. A letter, signed by 42 workers, raised concerns about the 'professional conduct of the senior executives of the trust board'.

Reduction

One member of staff, who asked to remain anonymous, said: "The thoughts and feelings of the senior medical staff is being reciprocated by nursing staff and we are getting to a point where in the last two weeks eight senior nurses have resigned."

"The main concern through senior nurses in general is we feel we are not being listened to, the failure to take note of patient safety concerns and the significant reduction in staffing over the last six months – it has reduced significantly, further compromising the safety of the department."

"If they don't take our concerns seriously there will be even more staff resigning."

The trust's chief executive Diane Wake said: "It is very natural to have a turnover of staff at the trust and we continually work hard to support them by introducing additional activities and support services, such as one-to-one meetings and staff health and wellbeing walk-in clinics. Our priority continues to be quality patient care, patient safety and to encourage people to choose to work in Dudley."

"Our emergency department is facing increasing patient demand, and despite this our staff turnover is 10.55 per cent, which is below the national average of 11.4 per cent from 2016/17. Six new staff nurses will be joining the trust in September."

CROWDS ENJOY FUN IN THE SUN AT SUMMERFEST

X Factor runners-up Reggie N Bollie on stage with compare DJ Dicky Dodd for SummerFest at Himley Hall in aid of Mary Stevens Hospice

CROWDS went wild as Lemar, Matt Terry and Reggie N Bollie took the stage at a fund-raising music festival in the grounds of Himley Hall.

Around 5,000 people crammed into the parkland for SummerFest, which raised money for Mary Stevens Hospice.

Soul singer Lemar was arguably the best-known star to take to the stage, with former X Factor contestants Matt Terry and Reggie N Bollie drawing younger fans to the concert on a perfect sunshine day.

Thousands of pounds were raised for the Stourbridge hospice from its first major music festival.

The ambitious event came after months of hard work from the charity's organising team.

Music fans basked in glorious sunshine on Sunday and, after the music was over, were able to watch the World Cup final. All money raised from the event will go back into supporting the hospice, which helps families across the Black Country, and organisers are already planning next year's event.

High-energy dance duo Reggie N Bollie, who finished as X Factor runners-up in 2015, got the crowd jumping. Dan Malin, a hospice spokesman, said: "Reggie N Bollie absolutely nailed it. The crowd went absolutely mad."

STABBING

Four deny killing man found in flat

FOUR young men have denied the murder of 24-year-old Jaskaran Kang who was found fatally stabbed in a flat above a convenience store in Brierley Hill.

Reggie Salmon, 20, of Stourbridge Road, Dudley, 18-year-old Dontay Ellis of Central Drive, Lower Gornal, and 17-year-olds from Dudley and Newcastle-under-Lyme, who cannot be named, entered their plea at Wolverhampton Crown Court on Monday.

Each further denied the manslaughter of Mr Kang whose body was discovered at the first floor flat in Stourbridge Road, Brierley Hill, during the early hours of January 6.

The 17-year-old from Newcastle-under-Lyme admitted conspiracy to rob while the other three defendants denied this offence. They were all remanded in custody and are expected to stand trial in January.

COURT

Teen charged with attempted murder

A TEENAGER charged with attempted murder after a hammer attack has appeared in court.

The 17-year-old, who cannot be named for legal reasons, appeared at Dudley Magistrates Court on Monday following the assault with a claw hammer in Wolverhampton last Thursday.

Another 17-year-old was left in a critical condition following the incident, which took place in Bilston Street.

DEVELOPMENT

A FORMER Brierley Hill pub, the Plough Inn, will become a six-bed house of multiple occupation after plans to transform the Church Street property were given the green light by Dudley Council.

Dramatic new TV role for Sir Lenny

Sir Lenny receives his PhD

SIR Lenny Henry and Agent Carter star Hayley Atwell will both appear in a new TV adaptation of best-selling novel The Long Song, the BBC has announced.

The three-part series, based on Andrea Levy's book, will also star Undercover's Tamara Lawrance and Dunkirk's Jack Lowden.

Set during the final days of slavery in 19th century Jamaica, the story follows the strong-willed July, played by Lawrance. Atwell plays the plantation owner while Lowden appears as the new overseer determined to improve the plantation for slaves and mistress alike.

Dudley-born actor and comedian Sir Lenny will play Godfrey in the BBC One series, which has been adapted by Sarah Williams from Levy's book, and will be directed by Mahalia Belo, the BAFTA winning director of C4's Ellen and director of the recent Wales-set chiller Requiem.

The BBC will be airing a tribute programme to mark the Dudley-born comedian and actor's 60th birthday next month. It will include classic clips from his career plus new items, including Sir Lenny's transformation into soul hero Stevie Wonder.

Sir Lenny, who turns 60 on August 29, said the broadcast is 'a great honour' and he is 'very chuffed' to have his comedy work celebrated.

Meanwhile, Sir Lenny is now also Doctor Lenny after being awarded a PhD in media arts from the Royal Holloway, University of London, after four years of studying.

Having previously achieved an MA in screenwriting from Royal Holloway, Lenny decided to pursue a PhD, which involved writing of an original screenplay and a critical analysis of black and ethnic minority characters

Prison for father who brandished a machete

A 30-year-old father from Dudley who smashed up his brother-in-law's car and brandished a machete in a 'fearsome' attack has been jailed for 14 months.

Engineer Sunil Jassi used the blade to damage the wing mirrors on Wayne Jones's car, which was parked outside his Wolverhampton home, in Avondale Road, Whitmore Reans.

Wolverhampton Crown Court heard Jassi then approached Mr Jones' house, put his face against the window and tapped the blade against the glass. He disappeared when Mr Jones called the police but officers found him hiding in an outhouse at his grandparents' home. They also discovered a small amount of cocaine and cannabis in his possession.

Jassi, of Alderwood Precinct in Dudley, was charged with possession of a bladed article, criminal damage, and affray following the incident in June.

He was also in breach of a two-year suspended sentence, given to him in February after he was found to be driving under the influence of alcohol, while disqualified, and with a knife.

The court heard how Jassi had been upset about a family matter but 'bitterly regretted' his actions. Mr Simon Hunka, defending, said Jassi had been a hard-working father and partner.

He also received a restraining order not to go near Mr Jones.

Location of proposed girls' school confirmed

CONCERNED residents flocked to a school hall to have their say on controversial plans for a 750-pupil girls' boarding school.

The public event, held at Old Swinford Hospital, on Heath Lane, saw members of the community questioning headteacher Paul Kilbride over the proposals.

It was confirmed the site being considered for the new free school was off Norton Road, opposite the Roman Catholic graveyard, owned by the Thomas Foley Foundation. Speaking at the meeting, Old Swinford Hospital headteacher Mr Kilbride said the school would be targeting 'disadvantaged girls'.

Mr Kilbride said: "For the first time the Government itself has identified this local authority district as a targeted area, which means it is a part of the country where a new free school will have the greatest impact on improving outcomes.

Funding

"In terms of what we are proposing, it is a free school and by a free school we mean a state school which receives its funding directly from central Government, directly from the Department For Education, and a school which is set up to meet local needs.

"It is non-selective, it is not a grammar school, it is a non-denomination school and a single sex school. Stourbridge frankly does not need another secondary school, but our local authority certainly does and the Black Country certainly does.

"We think that our founder Thomas Foley, who was a Black Country boy through and through, would approve."

"In terms of the potential location, we are in consultation with planning consultants because there is precedent for education buildings being put on that land."

One resident suggested the derelict Longlands School site in Bowling Green Road, Stourbridge, would be a more fitting location. An online consultation via the school's website continues until July 27.

Brave Sharon dances with Grannies

Bilston's Sharon Murray performed with the Dancing Grannies in a dance routine at Stourbridge Carnival

A YEAR ago, Sharon Murray was given two months to live. But she has defied the odds and has fulfilled her dream to perform with the Black Country's Dancing Grannies.

Sharon, from Bilston, has cancer and is making her way through a fundraising bucket list and was also able to tick off another major item by meeting one of her sporting heroes, Steve Bull.

The 48-year-old stepped out with the Grannies, aka The Fizzogs, at Stourbridge Carnival and then teamed up with Bully on a trip to Wolves' home ground Molineux.

"I was very nervous performing with the Grannies," she said. "They were so kind to me helping me with the moves. I don't know how many people were there. I was too scared to look."

Sharon is determined to tick off many items as possible. "I haven't got time to die," she said. "I've got too many things to do."

Rooms above pub gutted by blaze

A WOMAN was taken to hospital after a fire broke above a Black Country pub.

Crews from Haden Cross Fire rushed to the Spring Meadow pub, Halesowen Road, Old Hill, just before 7pm on Wednesday, July 11, moments before kick-off in the England v Croatia World Cup Match.

The blaze started in a front bedroom with customers rushing upstairs to tackle it with fire extinguishers.

Dramatic footage posted to social media by firefighters shows charred walls and multiple rooms of the living quarters devastated by the fire.

Three people were treated on the scene for smoke inhalation and a woman was taken to Russell's Hall Hospital but was later released. Crews also worked to rescue a cat from the blaze.

Soul night at Civic

A SOUL and Motown dance night is being held in Brierley Hill Civic Hall.

Advance tickets are £5 with the on-the-door price £6 for the event on Saturday, July 28, from 8pm to 1am.

The venue will also be equipped with video screens.

Council pays out £5m for women's equal pay

DUDLEY Council was forced to pay out more than £5 million in settlements over an equal pay row.

Hundreds of women took legal action after claiming they were not being paid enough compared with male colleagues.

Councillor Steve Clark, cabinet member for finance said: "It's essential that our staff feel valued and are appropriately rewarded for the work that they do in helping us to deliver the best possible services for residents.

"In common with other councils, Dudley has had to settle claims in relation to alleged historic disparity in pay between employees.

"Under accounting rules we have been able to mitigate the financial impact by spreading the cost of these settlements over 20 years."

Dudley paid out the amount over three years, ranging from £200 to £104,447.07 for one settlement alone in 2015.

Hundreds of women took legal action against the authority in 2013. Some had accepted offers in 2010 for only a couple of hundred pounds whereas others had received up to £90,000.

Councillor Ken Finch said: "I am a big believer in equality and I think it's something I think we should've tackled years ago.

"It was on the cards years ago. I was involved when I was a member of a trade union years ago.

"It's a just reward and it's no more than they deserve."

Mayor's pledge on 'controlling group'

LABOUR'S hope of running Dudley Council has received a setback after the town's mayor said he would vote with the 'controlling group' on any vote of no confidence.

As Dudley Mayor, Conservative Councillor Alan Taylor has the vital casting vote used to break a deadlock when parties are tied.

Earlier this month, the defection of Norton ward councillor, Mike Atwood, from the Tories, opened up the prospect of Labour taking control with 36 seats to the Conservatives' 35. Labour leader Pete Lowe said he had been told by the mayor he would use his casting vote to back the largest group in the council chamber.

But the mayor has denied such a suggestion, saying: "He has mistaken me. He said I would support the largest group but I said that, as mayor, I would support the controlling group." Asked if he would be supporting the Conservatives he refused to be drawn, adding: "My quote is, I will be supporting the controlling group."

Mother-of-six 'denied option of survival'

Natalie Billingham

THE brother of a mother-of-six who died from sepsis at hospital in Dudley has said his sister was 'denied the option of survival'.

An inquest was told that Natalie Billingham, from Tipton, died earlier this year after she was originally admitted to A&E at Russells Hall Hospital on February 28 with suspected deep vein thrombosis (DVT). Her family had previously said she spent 12 hours in a cubicle.

She was in fact suffering with necrotizing fasciitis and sepsis, which was only diagnosed hours later when her condition deteriorated rapidly. The inquest heard blood results, which could have shown an abnormality, were not checked.

Black Country Coroner's Court heard the 33-year-old underwent surgery three times, her leg was amputated, but her devastated family were later told the infection had spread too far and caused organ failure.

She died on March 2. Her cause of death was listed as multiple organ failure.

The Dudley Group NHS Foundation Trust had apologised after her death and launched an investigation, which highlighted a number of failings and also included changes and action plans for improvement which are in the process of being carried out.

Senior Black Country coroner Zafar Siddique recorded a narrative conclusion into Natalie's death but said he couldn't contribute neglect as part of his conclusion. He said: "I still have concerns about the progress being made at the trust and other deaths being prevented. I will be writing to the trust."

In a statement after the inquest, Natalie's brother, Trevor Rawlins, said: "Natalie was 100 per cent denied the option of survival, regardless of faults of individuals or organisations."

Black Country Day party time in the town centre

IT WAS an absolutely bostin' Black Country Day as Dudley Fun Day brought crowds to the town centre for music, food stalls, children's entertainment and the revival of the town's famous annual coffin race.

The coffin race is a humorous re-enactment of an event that happened during the English Civil War in 1646 when the Cavalier and Roundhead armies called a temporary ceasefire to allow the body of Mistress Beaumont to be carried from the under siege Dudley Castle to Top Church for burial.

Chairman of the Black Country Festival Dave Brownhill said it had been a brilliant occasion.

"This is the sixth Black Country Day and the fifth Black Country Festival," he said. "The beauty of this year is the festival has spread wider across the Black Country. There are more events than ever before and I'm absolutely delighted to see that.

Community

"It's great to see how the community has really embraced the Black Country Festival."

Other events on Saturday included Wolverhampton Fiesta in West Park, Wordsley Carnival, the OH Festival at Old Hill, Bilston's Black Country Day and Wednesbury Carnival.

Wolverhampton's Britain's Got Talent finalist Donchez Dacres made an appearance in both Dudley and Wordsley, delighting fans with a performance of his hit tune Wiggle Wine. He said: "It's an honour to be here, on Black Country Day. For the local people to embrace me in this way is just a fantastic feeling."

The festivities continue at Brierley Hill this Saturday when the Brier Fair, now in its second year, will be held from 9am to 5pm along Brierley Hill High Street. There will be arts and crafts activities in the library, street entertainment including Punch and Judy shows, face painting, the Thomas Jones fun fair and market stalls, plus a programme of entertainment including military band, choirs and dance groups.

Also the Summer in the Park event is held at Dudley's Buffery Park from 11am to 5pm, including wrestling, classic cars and a land train.

It's the thumbs up for Black Country Day from the Mayor of Dudley Councillor Alan Taylor at Stone Street

Steam goes off the rails at SVR

SEVERN Valley Railway is to temporarily only run its heritage diesel locomotives to reduce the risk of fire in the on-going hot and dry weather. The railway has taken the precaution following a number of small fires which broke out along the line, which runs from Kidderminster to Bridgnorth via Bewdley. To reduce the risk of further fires and the added pressure on the fire service, the SVR's heritage diesel locomotives will be replacing their steam counterparts during the dry spell but it will be reviewed on a day-to-day basis with updates on the SVR website and Facebook page.

The two reverse vending machines will be installed at stores in Skipton, North Yorkshire, and Lindsayfield, Scotland, for six months and will allow customers to deposit bottles in return for points coupons or a charity donation. The machines accept all plastic bottles that have a barcode and Morrisons own-brand. Customers can return a maximum of 20 bottles a day. The scheme follows a number of moves by Morrisons to reduce customers' use of plastic.

Centre combines shopping and gaming

SHOPPING centre owner Intu has tried out new technology that lets people compete in giant video games whilst they shop at the Merry Hill centre. The Intu Accelerate programme was launched earlier this month and as part of it start-up business Rhythm is working with the shopping centre group to test how massive gaming experiences could drive up shopper numbers, attract younger customers and benefit retailers. Its product, called Piing, creates multi-player games for big screens that up to 200 people can take part in at a time using their mobile phones as controllers. Hundreds of shoppers tried the technology and took part in a series of games that included a dune buggy race, tennis and a general knowledge quiz.

Six more initiatives are currently being trialled by Intu in partnership with start-up businesses as part of the firm's drive to introduce more technological innovations. Intu chief executive David Fischel said: "We're continuing to explore how technology could offer Intu customers an even better experience and create new opportunities for our retailers to thrive. "Intu Accelerate is empowering our business to find more ways to innovate the retail industry in partnership with some of the smartest start-up companies out there. "Hundreds of shoppers can take part in any one of these games at a time and this created a real sense of excitement among shoppers when we trialled the technology at Intu Merry Hill."

Free summer holiday swimming for children

CHILDREN will be able to swim for free at leisure centres in Dudley, Stourbridge and Halesowen over the summer holidays. Dudley Council bosses have announced the move to encourage youngsters to stay active, keep fit and help beat the boredom during the six-week break. The offer will be on at Dudley Leisure Centre, Halesowen Leisure Centre and Crystal Leisure Centre in Stourbridge during public swimming times. Children up to and including the age of 16 who reside in Dudley borough are eligible. Free swimming will start on July 21 and finish on September 2, the day before most children return to school. Registration must be completed in advance and parents can sign their children up at www.freeswimindudley.co.uk where they will then be issued with a QR code which can be scanned every time they visit one of the leisure centres. Families without access to the internet can sign up at any of the borough's libraries.

Prize

Children who register before Saturday will automatically be entered into a free prize draw to win an annual junior membership at the leisure centres. Councillor Ruth Buttery, cabinet member for health, said: "We are very keen to promote initiatives that encourage children in our borough to stay fit, active and healthy." Sessions outside of public swimming times, such as Aqua Run at Halesowen, are not included. Children and families are advised to turn up early to avoid queues at peak times. Children aged eight or over may enter the pools unaccompanied. All under the age of eight must be accompanied into the water by an adult (over 16). One adult may accompany up to two children aged under eight.

Landmark tank gets new lean green look

The famous Delph tank in Brierley Hill has been given a new lean, green, fighting machine paint job. The Chieftain tank has been sitting at the entrance to the Delph Industrial Estate, near Merry Hill, for decades.

Painter Steve Whitehouse said it has taken up to five coats of paint but is 'something different than painting somebody's living room.' It has been given a lighter look than its original dark green.

Brum calls for common policy on taxi licences

COUNCIL bosses in Birmingham want to establish a 'common set of standards' for issuing taxi licences across the West Midlands – which would also apply to rebel local authority Wolverhampton. The public are being put in 'danger' by current legislation, which allows private hire operators to obtain a licence in one area and work in another, warned councillor Ian Ward, leader of Birmingham City Council (BCC).

Council officers have no enforcement powers over drivers licensed elsewhere. Councillor Ward revealed he had held a meeting between Labour council leaders in the West Midlands with a view to establishing consistency across the region for issuing licences. It is understood the talks have also included bosses at Wolverhampton council, which has been widely criticised for its licensing process. It is quicker and cheaper to obtain a licence at the authority while there is dispute as to whether their examination is easier and less demanding. Councillors and officials at Birmingham have not publicly pointed the finger at Wolverhampton. But tellingly, the authority was omitted when councillor Barbara Dring, chairman of licensing and public protection (BCC), wrote to the Minister for Transport about the issue in October on behalf of Birmingham, Coventry, Sandwell, Dudley and Walsall councils. Councillor Dring said: "It is not appropriate to comment on the standards applied by other local authorities but we take this very seriously in Birmingham."

Bill's Brexit betrayal blast

A WEST Midlands MEP has accused Conservative cabinet ministers who have stayed in post of failing to stay true to the principles of Brexit. In a scathing attack on Michael Gove, Liam Fox and Andrea Leadsom, Sedgley's Bill Etheridge said that by refusing to quit Theresa May's top table, after the Prime Minister outlined her plan for the UK's Brexit, they had betrayed the Vote Leave campaign. The former UKIP defence spokesman said: "Now we are beginning to see who amongst the Tories actually believes we should Leave. Only UKIP fought exclusively for the independence of our great country. Now these miserable traitors continue to keep their snouts in the trough at the expense of any principles they once had!"

The Bramford Arms in Park Road, Woodseton, was closing this week for a revamp as a sports bar, including extra TV screens and improved beer garden.

General manager Christopher Henden said: "We're really excited to get the refurbishment under way, and look forward to welcoming our Dudley neighbours to the revamped venue when it officially opens on Sunday, July 29."

RESIDENTS are being invited to enjoy a walk and a picnic in the park of a stately home near Stourbridge, in aid of charity.

Hagley Hall grounds will be open to the public on Sunday, July 29, to raise funds for Mary Stevens Hospice.

Walkers will be able to enjoy exclusive access, including the newly refurbished waterfall and parkland. The event will take place between 11am and 4pm. Tickets cost £5 for adults and under-15s go free. Tickets available on the day or by calling (01562) 883834. No dogs allowed.

Co-op cash is a boost for park and church

NEW facilities have been added to a church and park after receiving funding from a supermarket group.

The Central England Co-op has handed out £11,800 to worthy causes across the West Midlands through its Community Dividend Fund. Friends of Hurst Green Park, in Halesowen, received £2,500 for play equipment. Electric heaters will be installed at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, in Old Hill, after a £2,000 donation.

Bear offer backfires due to store refit closure

PARENTS have vented their anger after Build-A-Bear closed its Merry Hill store on the day of a cheap teddy offer.

The chain was offering its Build-A-Bear 'pay your age' offer nationwide on July 12 leading to huge queues outside stores. But the branch on the upper mall of the Brierley Hill shopping centre was closed for a re-fit.

Build-A-Bear later reportedly abandoned the offer citing an 'overwhelming and unprecedented' demand.

Many shoppers were hoping to take advantage of the one-day deal, which sees them pay their child's current age in pounds for one of the popular stuffed toys.

A sign was put up on the shop's shutters and Merry Hill did advise of the store closure on Facebook and Twitter. But many shoppers took to social media to voice their disappointment.

A spokesman for Intu Merry Hill said the store was due to re-open tomorrow (Friday).

Elsewhere across the country, Build-A-Bear stores received an 'unprecedented response' to the promotional event, including huge queues outside the branch in Telford.

People began queueing outside the workshop from 8am, and by mid-morning new arrivals were being turned away and given vouchers by apologetic staff.

Police hunt for 'balding' groper

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a young woman was sexually assaulted in Wordsley.

A man touched the woman inappropriately from behind as she was walking in Blandford Drive between 5.45 and 8.30pm on Sunday, July 8.

The woman managed to get away, before reporting the incident to police.

The man is described as white, balding, around 5ft 4ins tall and of a slim build.

A spokesman for West Midlands Police said: "CCTV enquiries remain on-going and anything with information is asked to call us."

Anyone with information can call police officers on 101, quoting incident reference number 20DY/154414Y/18.

Big top fun at centre

A STOURBRIDGE shopping centre will be holding Big Top Fun Fridays in August. Each Friday from 11m to 4pm young visitors to Ryemarket Shopping Centre will be able to join in free activities including circus skills.

Contest to find picture perfect children

DO you have the cutest child? Does your little one look adorable in photographs? Then your child could be crowned a winner in the Baby and Toddler of the Year contest, run by our sister publication The Express & Star.

Entry is free and open to parents/guardians within the E&S circulation area with a child aged five or under.

Our official photographer will be at Intu Merry Hill between July 23 and 29 and at the Mander Centre in Wolverhampton between July 30 and August 4. All pictures will be published in an E&S supplement and they will appear on the paper's website.

Parents will be able to bring along their children along to be photographed and will then be invited back to choose the perfect picture for the supplement. If they cannot choose, one will be selected for them.

The children will be split into four age categories; 0-9 months, 10-18 months, 19-35 months and 3-5 years. Readers will be invited to vote for their favourite. There will be a winner in all brackets, with a £500 for prize for each category and extra £250 for the overall winner. To vote, simply choose your favourite from all the entries.

The photographs will also be featured in the E&S on Wednesday, September 12.

Once you've chosen, cut out the special vote tokens printed each day until October 13. The deadline for returning tokens is October 19.

Along with your vote tokens, complete a Voting Tokens Return Form, either downloaded and printed from the website or using the form available in the E&S.

Be sure to include the child's name, age category and unique voting code number.

Readers may vote as many times as they like using the vote tokens, which can be sent in batches or all together in one envelope after all tokens have appeared. Voting Tokens Return Forms MUST be sent each time tokens are sent in.

STEM students rise to innovation challenge

FROM a reading aid for the visually impaired to a chair in a briefcase – young inventors have been showing off their creations in the MNA STEM Challenge 2018.

After months of hard work 21 teams from schools across the Black Country, Staffordshire and Shropshire presented their products to the competition judges.

The students had been set the brief of designing and manufacturing a product to improve or enhance the quality of life for a group or person they considered to be disadvantaged.

Each team was paired up with a mentor from a local business or organisation who have offered them advice and guidance since the challenge was launched.

There was a buzz in the air at Dudley College of Technology as pupils, teachers and business mentors gathered to share their ideas and working models.

Diverse

The results were very impressive with a diverse range of products on display at the Dudley Advance II campus.

Judges spent a morning scrutinising their work plans, listening to the pupils' presentations and watching demonstrations before announcing their winners.

The overall winner was Thorns Collegiate Academy in Quarry Bank with their My Stand device, which will now be sold to help raise money for Sedgley-based Beacon Centre.

The team, named Little Einsteins, designed a stand for a mobile phone or tablet that enables blind and visually impaired people to make the most of a talking camera app called Seeing AI. As well as holding a tablet or phone, it has an extra shelf so that a document can be placed at the ideal height and position in front of the device's camera enabling the app to read the text out loud. The team, whose mentors were Mel Sinar and Kira Edwards from Petford Group, were in regular contact with Matt Harrison, Beacon's technology services manager, to ensure the product suited needs.

Science teacher Deb Bate said being named overall winners was 'amazing', adding: "It's been a great experience and we're delighted that thanks to Petford Group the Beacon Centre is going to be selling these stands in their shop."

Team member Jasmine Lawrence, aged 14, said: "It's given us a great insight into the world of work and the different jobs available. It was interesting to see how different people had interpreted the brief we had been given."

Winner of Best Work Plan, sponsored by En-trust, were Holly Hauliers from Holly Hall Academy who worked with mentors Martyn Hughes and Ryan Young from Harco Engineering on a 'chair in a briefcase'.

Express & Star editor Keith Harrison congratulated the teams, saying: "The ingenuity, dedication, organisation and the talent of those involved has shone through from the very start."

Broken Or Damaged Windows? Faulty Locks, Handles, Hinges?

IN MY VIEW

with Mark Andrews

Not sold on market landmark entrance

THE finishing touches are being put to Wolverhampton's £5 million market, with the piece de resistance being a new landmark entrance. And it is certainly that. Visitors to the new showpiece, on the site of the old Rackhams store in Snow Hill, will be greeted with a pile of shabby-looking shipping containers with City of Wolverhampton Market written across one of them. Very Shoreditch.

Personally speaking, I think they've missed a trick. Why not put in a pile of partially dissembled Ford Cortinas, a crane with a giant magnet, and a tattooed skinhead in a caravan holding a pit-bull on a string? Still, I suppose £5 million doesn't go that far these days.

The public response has been somewhat lukewarm, in that everybody hates it. Which, of course, will be music to the ears of the "creatives". "Provoking debate" and "providing an interesting talking point," will no doubt be their interpretation. Then again, The Blitz got people talking, but you wouldn't say it was entirely good for London, would you?

Do they never learn? It was the same in the early 1990s, when Wolverhampton Council had the bright idea of blocking the roads with huge flower tubs. A few months later they were removed at great expense following uproar from the public.

Then there was the hideous 'artwork' along both the Black Country Route and the Dudley Southern Bypass. I remember driving past the Cinder Bank roundabout in Dudley one morning when these random bits of orange metal suddenly appeared. I thought a lorry had shed its load. Still, credit where it's due, at least the new market is true to the history of the site. It was an eyesore before the investment, and it's an eyesore now.

TEACHER Helen Pattison was among the protesters demonstrating against Donald Trump's visit to the UK. Good for her you might think. Everyone has the right to protest. Except that Miss Pattison not only staged a classroom walkout to take part but also told a newspaper she was taking pupils along with her too.

"We have not just a right to protest, but a duty," she said. Well, no actually. Your duty is to teach pupils skills that will get them a job when they leave school. And to be impartial, leaving your political views at home, no matter how strongly you feel.

The Department for Education recently hit out at parents who took their children on term-time holidays, saying every day at school was valuable. Maybe they should have a word with Miss Pattison.

Time, perhaps, to dig out the long sleeves and trousers

Trump's arrival sparked comment from every conceivable, ill-educated source Emotional Olivia Colman, who kicked off another series of Who Do You Think You Are?

Farewell to Poldark's evil vicar Osbourne Whitworth, played by Christian Brassington

Trump's visit to a well-red populace

OH, isn't it fun, sneering at the ill-educated lower orders? From the Guardian website comes this lofty put-down: "After all this hot weather Trump is going to feel at home. Rednecks everywhere." Brilliant, darling - except that's not how you spell "everywhere."

AS the NHS prepares to ration 17 procedures, a reader suggests the ultimate aim is to ignore anyone who can be described as 'poorly'. Who knows? On this 70th birthday of our health service, all that seems to matter is that the NHS is 'free at the point of delivery'. Does anyone who spouts this well-worn and hugely misleading phrase ever visit a dentist or optician?

HAD that Barbour moment yet? It's the one, deep into a sweltering heatwave, when you open a wardrobe full of waxed jackets, fleeces and scarves and cannot imagine why you would ever wear such things again. Come February you may experience the exact opposite as you stumble upon your skimpy-shorts drawer.

WELCOME back to Who Do You Think You Are (BBC1), a show in which celebrities compete to see how quickly they can burst into tears over something that happened hundreds of years ago to a distant relative they hadn't heard of until that moment. In the first show of the new series, Olivia Colman got off to a fine start by blubbing, after just 10 minutes, about her great-great-grandmother being sent from India to England at the age of three in 1812.

THIS is a delicate matter. As the height of the male population increases (from 5ft 8ins to 5ft 10ins in the past 50 years), is the height of public conveniences also rising? I fear an epidemic of RHU may be upon us. Your tales of Ridiculously High Urinals will be treated in strict confidence, unless they are amusing.

BEFORE long, a certain amount of wet stuff will presumably fall from the heavens and end England's drought. Two things about rain always take us by surprise. First, a few hours before the deluge, your house fills with big, black hairy spiders looking for shelter. Secondly, as water reacts with rubber and oil, the roads turn into ice-rinks. Bad times for arachnophobes, great opportunities for insurance firms to bump up premiums. Drive slowly and carry a big slipper.

IT never occurred to me that in Poldark's time, when ye streets were paved with manure and folk washed once every decade or so, that foot fetishism would be quite as popular as the ill-fated Reverend Osbourne Whitworth (Christian Brassington) suggests. Tic Tac, vicar?

"WE won't see anything like this again," declared one proud visitor in the Mall as the RAF's 100th anniversary flypast roared overhead. I wonder how many aircraft had to be cannibalised by RAF technicians to put all those 103 planes in the air at the same time. It took me back to the First Gulf War in 1990 when I was at the RAF base in Bahrain as the Tornados were being prepared for battle. In the heart of the plane is an access shaft where techies squeeze in to get at various black boxes and widgets. It was a job reserved for the smallest, thinnest bloke in the team and you couldn't help thinking of Victorian children being sent up chimneys.

I DO get a wee bit worried by those who take a malicious glee in telling us that it is impossible to leave the EU. Not even the British Empire hung on to its possessions so grimly. If we really are in an empire from which there is no escape it is, by definition, an evil empire.

I HAVE just been on another train. That makes three in eight years. This week's ride took me on the train from Coventry to Leamington Spa which now, after a gap of 53 years, again stops at Kenilworth. In ye olden days I was a trainee reporter on the Kenilworth Weekly News. In the silly season, we could always fill half a page with speculation about when the old station would be reopened. As the old saying goes, everything comes to he who waits (except the things that don't).

LEAMINGTON, like most big towns and cities has seen huge celebrations for the World Cup but not a drop of rain to wash away the results. I have never seen so much dried vomit despoiling the pavements. As that fine old football anthem goes: Three Lagers on My Shoes.

TALKING POINT

Fuelling my fears after filling up on hols

THE feeling is one of panic, tinged with confusion and dread.

After filling up with petrol on holiday, I walk towards the garage shop to pay, reach for my wallet, and find my pocket is empty. I go inside and explain my predicament.

The assistant is next to useless and seeks advice on what to do, muttering "This gentleman has a problem with petrol or something". I'll say it's a problem! I'm stranded in a strange place, and never having been in this situation before, have no idea what to do. It's not as if I can put the petrol back in the pump, is it?

The second assistant is more switched-on and gets straight to the point: "I can't let you drive off." Fair enough, but then I'm left in no doubt as to how serious this is. "Have you no means of paying at all?" "Nothing."

"Bank card? Someone who can phone through with the payment? Contactless account on your phone?"

By now I'm trembling, my mouth is dry and I'm talking gobbledygook. After weighing up the options, I place said phone on the counter and offer to leave it as security. That suggestion triggers a solution. I'm asked for my name, address, make and model of vehicle, registration number and made to sign a print-out.

It's only when I get back to the car that I gather my thoughts sufficiently to remember there's always a bag of change in the glove box for parking, and so I start counting out coin after coin. It soon becomes obvious there isn't enough to pay for the petrol but then I put my hand back in my pocket and find just enough change to make up the total cost.

With tail between my legs, I slope back into the shop. "Guess what?" "You've found your wallet?"

"No, but I've scraped together enough change to pay."

And so we count out all those coins again, and with phone back in my possession, I continue on my way.

Mind you, I'm glad I left it till later to read the small print on the "No means to pay at Pump 2" receipt, which said I had agreed to 'make payment within 24 hours' and 'advised' my details may be passed to a debt collecting agency if I did not comply with the agreement I signed. Talk about putting a dent in your day!

Nearly forgot: I retraced my steps and got my wallet back within an hour. I'd left it in a shop I'd been to before filling up.

Let this be a warning. Check you have the wherewithal before taking that nozzle out of the pump. Happy motoring!

Too little compassion shown for diabetics

ONE thing which is not mentioned much these days is the treatment of our diabetic population. I mean the attitude in which diabetics are treated.

I have been diabetic, Type 1, since 1967, and in that time I have seen many advances in medical treatment. When I was first diagnosed I used a glass syringe and inch-long needles, the latter I was expected to sharpen myself. There was no home testing of blood and a six-monthly visit to the hospital was the best on offer.

These days we have insulin pens with tiny painless needles and home blood testing is done in a jiffy. Medical knowledge has advanced so much, thanks in part to such organisations as Diabetes UK. But one thing has not changed and that is the way some diabetics are treated by other people.

I am retired now, but since becoming diabetic I have received all sorts of comments, some very upsetting. Employers are not free from blame. HR departments are at many times insensitive to the problems and needs of the diabetic. I had to give the head of one a leaflet about diabetes, and this an organisation employing many thousands.

My supervisor used to tell people that I 'shot up' when I injected. Very few people showed me any understanding.

Diabetes is not just a case of injecting insulin. There are problems with the kidneys, feet, circulation, heart and eyes. All these things can cause depression. And unless you are diabetic or know someone closely who suffers it, there is little understanding. In this high speed world compassion and concern are way down the list on people's lists of priorities.

Industry threats a form of blackmail

THE more we hear about Brexit the more it makes me wonder why we fought two wars resulting in the deaths and maiming of so many people, when we are being subservient to countries we either fought against or were on the same side as us.

We have the habit of talking this country down instead of putting our minds and backs into making it great once again.

Industrialists are threatening to pull out of this country if things do not go the way they want.

If this is what they want, then as far as I'm concerned let them do it and then slap huge taxes on the goods they want us to buy.

After all, do we really like to be blackmailed which was, I thought, illegal?

World to trade with

IN the past few months, we have heard various industries vowing to pull out of Britain if the Government doesn't get a good deal.

In 1979, as an engineering technician apprentice with Beans Engineering at Tipton, I was actually working with the senior management team as part of my training. The manager of the purchasing department travelled to Brazil to try to secure a contract to supply their Navy with Thornycroft marine engines for their inshore patrol boats. Unfortunately they didn't get the contract.

Has British industry got so entwined with the EU that they are ignoring the fact there is a whole world out there to trade with, or is it that the senior managers no longer have the ability to tender for contracts anymore?

The European Common Market was set up for trade, it has turned basically into a dictatorship. Better off out of it!

MARTIN STONES

Brexit – time to vote again

NEGOTIATING Britain leaving the EU is proving costly and complicated with uncertainty over the advantage of a future outside the union.

Brexiters fought their corner with empty platitudes. Their nationalistic rhetoric sounded good when aimed at swaying emotion, by envisioning a return to Britain's glorious past.

Nationalism and patriotism became confused. A patriot loves his country and is realistic of its relationship with other countries. This does not mean he doesn't want the best for his country but is rational as to what is the best and how to obtain it.

Two years on from the referendum, would those who voted to leave, in the face of reality and clarity, vote in a similar way? The answer can only come with another referendum. It would be remarkable if the result remained the same.

Plenty of pomp with our proud prom-goers

STUDENTS have been showing off their stunning ball gowns and sharp suits and tuxedos as they hit the dance floor to celebrate the start of summer.

It's that time of year again when students turn on the glitz for a special night out to mark the end of the school or college year.

And the Chronicle wants to see pictures of you getting dressed up to the nines or arriving in style at your venue.

More unusual snaps are also welcome, from matching prom dresses to wacky transport - we would love to see your quirky ideas sent in.

It's not just proud parents and happy students who can get involved, teachers are also welcome to submit pictures of their pupils.

And it seems no expense has been spared in ensuring pupils have made entrances worthy of a red carpet arrival at a movie premiere.

Style

Among those getting all dressed up this year were students from Bristnall Hall Academy in Oldbury who held their prom at Malmaison Birmingham.

Many students got the chance to arrive in style, being taken to their destination in sports cars and limousines - but a great night was had by all as these young people began the next chapter in their lives.

Youngsters from Ounsdale High School in Wombourne were treated to a pre-prom party in the village before they took off in a limousine for more celebrations at the Village Hotel in Dudley.

Earls High School in Halesowen were treated to a top-notch night at

Hollie White and Adam Smith from Earls High, Halesowen

Ounsdale High School's pre-prom garden party took place in Wombourne the Copthorne Hotel at Merry Hill, in Dudley.

Wolverhampton Girls' High School pupils danced the night away at the Mount Hotel in Tettenhall and youngsters at Pedmore Technology College went in-house for their celebrations, with an event held in the school hall.

Finally, lucky students at the Ace Academy in Tipton enjoyed their night at West Bromwich Albion's football ground, The Hawthorns.

They were among dozens of prom-goers who shared snaps of their big night last summer and we want more of you to follow in their footsteps.

Keeping a garden low maintenance

Clent Gardening Club

THE club was given plenty of ideas for making gardens easier to manage while still looking in good shape throughout the year.

Speaker Carol Smith is a part-time lecturer at Pershore College and an experienced, innovative garden designer who has entered a number of shows.

Her talk to 35 members at Clent Village Hall was on how to create a low maintenance garden. She clearly detailed all the advantages in making a garden a time-saving and environmentally sustainable asset.

Her images of gardens before and after low maintenance ideas had been introduced made the talk come alive. She was even confident enough to show photos of her own front and back gardens near Worcester.

There was some friendly disagreement among the audience about the value of using lining material and planting shrubs and perennials through this to suppress weeds. The type that Carol recommends is fabric, not plastic, based. However this also led to plenty of practical questions at the end of the presentation.

The vote of thanks was given by Ken Jones.

After the usual refreshment break the raffle was drawn and the monthly competition winners were announced. More peragnumns were sold for the WI Gardening Club competition class at Clent Village Show on September 8.

Speaker's insight on Acorns charity

Mother tells of Stephen's story

ON the occasion of the 32nd anniversary of the club's formation, around 70 people attended its annual Charter Night on June 11 at the Fox Inn in Stourton.

Guest of honour was Jane Sutton, accompanied by her partner Tracey. Jane spoke with passion on the story of her son, Stephen Sutton MBE, and the impact of his extraordinary life upon hers and others.

Stephen passed away as a result of cancer on May 14, 2014, a few months before his 19th birthday. Jane told Stephen's Story and his fundraising efforts for the Teenage Cancer Trust that she has continued, with well over £5 million raised for the charity.

In recent years, Jane has run London marathons and climbed Mount

Kinver Rotary Club

Kilimanjaro, just to name two achievements of this remarkable woman.

The club was honoured to present Jane with a donation to the Teenage Cancer Trust.

Off the back of the success of its inaugural wine tasting last year and an overwhelming demand to run a similar event again this year, the Youth Committee of Kinver Rotary organised another wine tasting evening on June 8.

Forty club members, partners, friends enjoyed sampling a variety of wines from across the world with tasting notes provided by Dom from Majestic Wines. It also raised £145 for charity from the generosity of those that attended.

Wollaston E TWG

CHAIRMAN Julie Willets welcomed 33 members to the last meeting and read a lengthy list of apologies, which were mainly as a result of holiday commitments. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read out, and signed as a true record.

Joy Cook was presented with a certificate and a gift for achieving 25 years of guild membership. The event was photographed personally by Ann Powell Agency.

In the absence of the treasurer, the chairman presented the latest financial report, which confirmed a favourable situation in that respect.

Federation is organising an afternoon at Wollaston Village Hall on August 15, to celebrate the centenary of women's suffrage.

The speaker was Carol Pratt who gave a talk on Acorns Children's Charity, which is celebrating 30 years. Carol gave an insight into the various facilities within the hospices. Afterwards a donation basket was passed round.

Raffle prizes went to Glynis Allan and Ann Price.

Pair provide entertainment

THE Ladies met for the last meeting before the summer break at The Royal British Legion, Kingswinford.

Chairman Sheila Evans greeted everyone and business matters were read, approved and signed. Entertainers were Ian Dempsey-Robins and Will Morgan. Ian played the guitar and Will sang, folk songs, sad songs, and some risqué in a Jake Thackery-style. When asked for one final song Ian accompanied Will by playing his accordion.

Kath gave the vote of thanks and raffle prizes were won.

Dudley-born minister resigns over sex texts

A DISGRACED Dudley-born Government minister has quit his role after sending 'depraved' messages to two female constituents.

Andrew Griffiths, son of a former mayor of Dudley, is said to have bombarded a 28-year-old barmaid and her friend with lewd comments over social media during a three-week period.

The former High Arcal schoolboy sent 2,000 messages in which he referred to himself as 'Daddy', suggested renting a flat so they could meet for sex and asked them to send him explicit photos, the Sunday Mirror reported.

The 48-year-old married father, whose wife Kate gave birth to a daughter in April, resigned as minister for small business on Friday night.

Ashamed

In a statement he said he was 'deeply ashamed' and was seeking 'professional help to ensure it never happens again'.

Mr Griffiths, the MP for Burton upon Trent, grew up in Coseley where his family ran an engineering business. His father, the late Bob Griffiths, was a Dudley councillor for three decades and served as mayor.

In April, just a fortnight after becoming a father for the first time, he launched the Black Country Business Festival. He joked to the audience at the Black Country Living Museum about being 'on paternity leave' and recalled being pictured, aged 12, pulling pints at the Bottle & Glass pub when his father opened the museum in 1981. But those family recollections were a distant memory after the seedy allegations of the weekend.

Andrew Griffiths with his wife Kate, who gave birth to their daughter in April Barmaid Imogen Treharne told the national newspaper that, after meeting him online, the Conservative MP 'didn't want to speak to me about anything other than sex'.

She said: "I wanted him to be a nice guy, but by the end I felt dirty. I felt like I was being used for this wealthy man's gratification."

In a statement to the Sunday Mirror, Mr Griffiths, who once worked as Theresa May's chief of staff, apologised to 'all those who put their trust in me and that I have let down so terribly'.

He said: "I am deeply ashamed at my behaviour, which has caused untold distress to my wife and family, to whom I owe everything, and deep embarrassment to the Prime Minister and the Government I am so proud to serve."

10 Hat-trick for college over enterprise

Stourbridge Chronicle Thursday, July 19, 2018

STAFF and students from Dudley College of Technology's Peter Jones Enterprise Academy are celebrating a triple victory.

They have been awarded the titles of National Entrepreneur of the Year, Inspirational Student of the Year and Enterprise Manager of the Year at the national EntFest. That's the Peter Jones Foundation's enterprise festival which the business mogul from TV's Dragon's Den hosted at Buckingham University.

Level 3 BTEC in Enterprise and Entrepreneurship student Santis Rolmanis took the top award of National Entrepreneur of the Year for his innovative business idea which centres on a virtual reality immersive environment that allows participants to simulate a job interview. His product named Confidence VR is already operational and is available as a downloadable application.

Warren Edwards was acknowledged for his contribution when he was awarded the prize for Inspirational Student of the Year. Warren is a wheel chair user who has shown great motivation in pursuing his studies.

Alongside her students Victoria Greaves, Dudley College's Peter Jones Academy Manager, beat fierce competition to be named Enterprise Manager of the Year as an acknowledgment of her excellent leadership.

More Poundworld stores to close as job losses reach 1,300

Hit and run robbers target dog walker

Seen in a shop just before street robbery – do you recognise these men? If so, police would like to hear from you on 101

POLICE are urgently appealing for information after a man and his pet dog were run over in a vicious robbery in Cradley Heath.

The 28-year-old and his Staffordshire bull terrier were walking along Halesowen Road, Cradley Heath at 3am on Saturday, July 7 when a blue Mondeo drove into them at speed.

The force of the impact was so great the victim was knocked through a shop window and as he lay injured, the driver and passengers snatched his neck chains and bracelet.

Detective Sergeant Martin Richardson, leading the investigation, said: "The Staffy and his owner were lucky to escape serious injury or even death at the hands of these reckless individuals. Thankfully they are both recovering at home."

The investigation team has been working gathering CCTV, forensic evidence and conducting vehicle checks.

They have now launched a public appeal for information and have released images of three suspects who were spotted in a nearby shop shortly before the robbery.

Det Sgt Richardson added: "The fact that someone was willing to gamble with the victim and his pet dog's life in order to steal a very small amount of jewellery is utterly shocking."

Anyone with information should call 101 quoting 20SW/152098L/18.

POUNDWORLD stores at the Merry Hill shopping centre and Bloxwich are the among 80 stores to close nationwide with the loss of more than 1,000 jobs, administrators have revealed.

Attempts to rescue the collapsed company have so far failed and today's move follows the announcement of 25 store closures earlier this week.

Around 15 workers at the Merry Hill shop and 13 more at the Bloxwich High Street branch face losing their jobs by the end of this month.

Deloitte, the accountancy firm handling the administration process since Poundworld went bust, says the latest 80 stores will be closed between Friday, July 20, and Sunday July 22.

It will leave 230 stores open. That includes its seven remaining stores in the Black Country and southern Staffordshire, including two shops in Wolverhampton – in the Mander Centre and on Birmingham Road – as well as branches on the Reedswood Retail Park in Walsall, New Square in West Bromwich, the Queen's Retail Park in Stafford, Victoria Shopping Park in Hednesford and at the Three Spires in Lichfield.

Redundancies

The 1,024 redundancies will bring the total jobs toll so far to 1,366, including 100 at the head office and 240 from the first set of store closures.

Joint administrator Clare Boardman said: "Whilst we remain hopeful that a sale for part, or parts, of the business can still happen, it has not been possible to sell the business as a whole."

"We would like to thank all the employees for their continued support and commitment during this difficult time. We are keeping staff apprised of developments as they happen."

Wolves set out new ticket prices

WOLVES have revealed their match-day prices for their Premier League season – and are offering hundreds of free tickets to young fans at every home game.

In another positive move for fans, the Graham Hughes Stand will offer adult tickets cheaper than last season's Championship prices. However, fans in the Billy Wright Upper tier face a £10 increase for big matches.

The club has secured 5,000 Premier League match tickets, spread out across the season, which will be free to junior members. At each game, 260 free tickets will be available to Young Wolves and Wolf Pack members, on a first come first served basis.

Fans in the South and North Banks face a £5 rise to £30 per match for Category A games against Arsenal, Chelsea, Liverpool, Man City, Manchester United and Spurs. Category B go up by £2 to £27.

Imagine the perfect conservatory, that you can use all year round.

Replace your old roof with a thermally insulated lightweight tiled warm roof.

Rejections hurt but Angela would not quit

BRIERLEY Hill author Angela Marsons has achieved close to three million sales and been translated into 26 languages around the globe.

But she says she still has to 'pinch herself' every time she receives a royalty payment.

Becoming a successful novelist has been a 'rollercoaster ride' for the 50-year-old former Merry Hill shopping centre security guard.

She was left fearing she would never see her writing in print after parting ways from a top London literary agency and suffering a string of rejections from publishers.

The feedback from traditional publishers on her crime thriller series, which features no-nonsense Detective Kim Stone, was always the same: 'we love it...but not enough'. Some worried about the Black Country setting, others were concerned that readers wouldn't warm to her formidable lead character.

Publishing

But in October 2014, Angela received an email which was to make her dreams come true. A reader she had worked with at the literary agency, Keshini Naidoo, was now a commissioning editor at a digital publisher, Bookouture - and was interested in publishing Angela's work.

"It was a lifeline for me - I didn't have any expectations about what I'd sell, I thought maybe a couple of hundred copies, but I just wanted to see what readers thought. I wanted them to enjoy it," says Angela.

Her debut novel Silent Scream, set in Rowley Regis, has gone on to sell more than a million copies and was the number one Amazon bestseller in the UK for over a month. It also reached Angela Marsons, aged 50, from Brierley Hill, with one of her best sellers the top five in the US and has secured rights deals in more than 25 countries.

Her follow-up novels - Evil Games, Lost Girls, Play Dead, Blood Lines, Dead Souls, Broken Bones and Dying Truth - have all hit the Amazon top 10, with many of them shooting straight to the Amazon No.1 spot on pre-orders alone.

Total sales for her detective series are now close to three million, but it's the feedback from readers that Angela has found most rewarding - with more than 13,500 five-star reviews to date.

"After the feedback that I'd had from traditional publishers, I was worried whether readers would be put off by the setting of my books - but I get emails every single day from readers all around the world telling me that they love Kim Stone and can't wait for more."

"It's so exciting to have that kind of feedback - I've been in tears more than once at the messages that I've received."

Angela says she struggles to get her head around the fact that she has become an international best seller almost overnight.

"The dream for me was always to write for a living, and I just feel so privileged that I can do that now. Every time I get a royalty payment, I have to pinch myself. Never could I have imagined selling three million books. I am so lucky to work with such a talented team of people at Bookouture."

"Not only did they make all my dreams come true, they made new dreams and aspirations and then propelled me towards them, demonstrating a faith in me that I could only ever dream of."

"The last two years have been a journey of awe and discovery which continues to excite me every day."

14 Firm's new carbon fibre breakthrough

Stourbridge Chronicle Thursday, July 19, 2018

A DUDLEY firm is keeping the flame of Black Country innovation burning brightly after coming up with a revolutionary new kind of carbon fibre.

The new material is heat resistant, lightweight, cheaper to make and produces zero waste in its production, while two major cruise ship builders are already talking to the company about its use.

Carbon Fibre Preforms has spent the last seven years developing the material, called FR10, which it says has the potential to revolutionise the panel industry worldwide.

CFP is now partnering with the private investor network Growthdeck to raise finance for expansion of production to meet predicted global demand from end users across the train, aeronautical and shipbuilding industries as well as oil and gas drilling sectors.

CFP says the interest centres of FR10's potential use for panels instead of stainless steel, because of its ability to meet stringent fire safety regulations. The company says that, unlike other forms of carbon fibre, finished panels of FR10 are heat resistant at temperatures up to 1,200 degrees Centigrade for up to four hours.

CFP's managing director, Simon Price, is in "significant talks" with Mayer Werft and STX, the two largest cruise ship builders in the world.

All that jazz coming to the libraries too

LIBRARIES and museums will take centre stage at a jazz festival launching tomorrow (Friday). One of the many highlights of the Birmingham, Solihull and Sandwell Jazz Festival's opening weekend is West Bromwich-born singer Val Wiseman's tribute to Billie Holiday at Central Library West Bromwich, on Saturday.

Maurice Cole and his 1961 Daimler Dart, which took part in the Monte Carlo Rally during the 1980s and will be at Dudley Castle the SP250, alongside up to 90 other classic and rare cars at the event.

Mr Cole, 81, who has organised the event since its beginning, said: "The show at the castle is always a special event. This year we have a very rare Mini, one of only 10 made, as well as my Jaguar E-type and a Rolls Royce from 1924."

Mr Cole, from Dudley, will proudly parade the Dart, otherwise known as

A LONG-RUNNING family feud exploded into violence on a busy high street as four hooded, armed men cornered their victim in a shop, a judge heard.

Mohammed Tasabar was just about to serve the first customer of the day at his fruit and veg stall when the gang struck at 9.10am on June 23 last year, Wolverhampton Crown Court was told. He saw three men wearing balaclavas running towards him and fled through the rear door before circling back onto Lye High Street, explained Mr Robert Cowley.

"He saw the men getting into a Hackney Carriage-type vehicle which had no number plates," added prosecutor Mr Cowley. "He also saw two of the men lift their hoods and recognised them as being relatives."

Mr Tasabar was seen by the men, prompting them to race down the High Street passing startled members of the public in pursuit of the shop keeper, who they followed when he ducked into a Nisa store.

Four hooded men, one armed with a machete and the others clutching baseball bats, chased him up and down the aisles of the store before he was finally cornered and savagely beaten.

Mr Cowley said the victim recognised the voices of the two attackers. One of these was 29-year-old university educated Faisal Dad.

Miss Jabeen Akhtar, defending Dad, said the incident was part of a long-standing family dispute over land in Pakistan.

Dad, of Fieldfare Road, Stourbridge, admitted violent disorder and possession of an offensive weapon. He was jailed for three and a half years by Judge Nicholas Webb.

The second man identified was not well enough to attend court and will be sentenced at a later date.

NEC Lakeside Proms events are cancelled

THE NEC Birmingham has cancelled a planned weekend of live outdoor Proms-style music events.

Lakeside Proms was due to take place on August 4 and 5, but the venue this week announced it was being called off due to 'unforeseen circumstances'.

A brief message posted on the event's page on the NEC website read: "Due to unforeseen circumstances, NEC Lakeside Proms with The Royal Philharmonic due to take place on 4th and 5th August has been cancelled."

"The organisers are very sorry for any inconvenience caused. Ticket holders should contact The Ticket Factory to receive a full refund."

It is unclear whether slow ticket sales or other problems were behind the cancellation.

Lakeside Proms was to feature the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and a firework display.

Volunteer Carl rewarded for decade of dedication

A CHARITY volunteer who has given up more than 130 weekends to support Cancer Research UK Race for Life events has picked up a top award.

Carl Lubbock from Halesowen has volunteered almost every weekend for the past 10 years during Race for Life season, which is from May to September.

He's also worked right through the night several times at the charity's Shine London marathon night walk.

His dedication to the cause has earned him a national Flame of Hope Award in recognition of his outstanding contribution to the cause.

Double

The awards acknowledge remarkable efforts in fundraising and volunteering made by people from all walks of life.

Mr Lubbock, a 58-year-old retired systems analyst, took the Event Volunteer of the Year accolade, beating competition from other nominees from across the UK.

The award was presented last week at a ceremony in London hosted by Cancer Research UK chairman Sir Leszek Borysiewicz.

An audience at the Merchant Taylors' Hall heard how Carl is often the first volunteer to arrive on site at 5am and the last to leave. At Shine London Carl has been known to volunteer for double shifts, working from 4pm until 10am the next day.

Lorna Hartley, Cancer Research UK's area events manager for the Midlands, who made the nomination, said: "Carl is amazing. He's consistently blown us away with his energy, enthusiasm and commitment to the cause."

Mr Lubbock, a keen cyclist who retired from Eon 10 years ago, admitted to being slightly mystified by the nomination because he enjoys volunteering so much.

"After retiring early I was looking for something worthwhile to do. I went along to volunteer at Worcester Race for Life 10 years ago and was made to feel so welcome I signed up to as many as I could.

"It's an amazing event and it's become such a big part of my life I really miss it during the winter months. I've made some great friends and I volunteer almost every weekend from April to September."

Mr Lubbock's experience as a volunteer has so inspired him that he's decided to take part in the Shine London event - Cancer Research UK's marathon night walk - on September 22.

Modest cave rescue hero Mike tells of team's 'massive sense of relief'

Rescue divers make their way towards the stranded boys

A certificate of appreciation of Mike's efforts

A memento of the successful rescue operation

'Any successful rescue is always emotional'

Report by Mark Andrews

RESCUER Mike Clayton told of the 'massive sense of relief' he felt as the last of the boys emerged from the cave in Thailand where they had been trapped for well over a week.

The 50-year-old from Hampton Loade, near Bridgnorth, returned to a hero's welcome at the weekend after playing his part in the 'unprecedented' rescue operation to save 12 schoolboys and their football coach.

"When we heard they were all safe, it was fantastic, there was a massive sense of relief," he says.

"I think it's always emotional, because a life is a life, whether it's children or adults, any successful rescue is emotional."

But he says while the aim was always to rescue everybody who had been trapped in Luang Nang Non Cave, there were always concerns it would not be possible.

"Truthfully, we were not expecting a 100 per cent success rate," he says. "You try to hope, but privately I think we all had a more realistic expectation that it wouldn't quite be the case."

Modest and softly spoken, Mr Clayton seems slightly bemused by the reception he and his fellow rescuers received when they arrived back in the UK. Sitting in the kitchen of his idyllic home beside the River Severn, he is quick to point out that he was not one of the divers who entered the cave, but worked in ancillary support role.

"I wasn't there as a diver, I was there providing support at the surface," he says.

"There were three of us who went there in a support role, a lot of what we were doing was keeping everything away from the divers so they could focus on their job."

"There were a lot of discussions between the different authorities, this was an international venture, and we were also sourced the equipment that they need."

Smoothly

An experienced diver and caver himself, his experience was invaluable in ensuring everything went smoothly.

"It helped that I knew what the divers were going through, and knew my way around the equipment they would need," he says.

He says the scale of the operation to rescue the 13 was totally unprecedented, and it was impossible to know what the outcome would be. "We had never done anything like it before, and as the operation went on there was a lot of improvisation," he says.

Mr Clayton, who is chairman of Midlands Cave Rescue Organisation, received the call to go out to Thailand's Chian Rai province within hours of the discovery that the boys and their 25-year-old coach were safe and well in the underground cave network.

His partner Emma Porter, who is the secretary of British Cave Rescue Council, had already been providing administrative support for the rescue operation in this country.

"She had been dealing with it for the past two weeks, and knew that we needed more support out there for the divers," he said. "They needed somebody who was really experienced and had an understanding employer, who could go out at short notice, and I went out on the Thursday morning."

Mr Clayton is a friend of Rick Stanton from Coventry, who along with colleague John Volanthen, discovered the boys were safe and well when they entered the Luan Nang Non Cave a fortnight ago.

He says the news came as a big surprise, having feared the worst given that they had been missing for more than a week. "You don't normally expect that," he says.

Mr Clayton, who works as a safety officer for Eccleshall-based Arco, is also equipment officer for the British Cave Rescue Council. He has been involved in cave rescue for 18 years, and is philosophical about the work he does. "When you're a caver, you're a cave rescuer as well, it's just something you do," he says. "As a caver, you hope someone will go in and help you if you get into difficulties, so you do the same yourself."

He says the pressures and the stresses of being involved in a rescue on this scale were serious, but the sense of elation when all 13 of those stranded in the caves more than made up for it.

cause a life is a life, whether it's children or adults, any successful rescue is emotional.

"It was pretty exhausting, some nights we didn't finish until 9 or 10pm, other times it was earlier, I think it was more emotionally draining than physically tiring."

Mr Clayton says he knew many of the British volunteers who took part in the operation, including Rick Stanton who - along with colleague John Volanthen - discovered that the boys were safe and well.

Mr Stanton, from Coventry, also a member of Midlands Cave Rescue, described his emotions on finding the boys. There was relief at finding the boys alive tempered with uncertainty as to how they were going to get them out.

"Are we heroes? No, we were just using a very unique skill set which we normally use for our own interests and sometimes we are able to use that and give something back to the community."

Call for businesses to be forced to display food hygiene score

RESTAURANTS with low hygiene ratings should be made to display their scores to customers in a bid to force them to improve, a councillor says.

Councillor Adam Aston is calling on Dudley Council to support a campaign to change the law which would then make the display of Food Standards Agency ratings compulsory. The move would bring England into line with Welsh and Northern Ireland laws.

Darlings add glamour to 40s weekend

GLAMOROUS wartime elegance prevailed at a popular 1940s weekend starring TV singing sensation The D-Day Darlings.

Visitors to the Black Country Living Museum got into the spirit by donning tea dresses and tailored suits for the annual two-day nostalgia bing. This year there was more of a buzz than usual with the return of the D-Day Darlings, who since their last performance at the museum a year ago have become a household names after making thousands of new fans via TV as Britain's Got Talent finalists. At the weekend they sang twice in the park before performing four sets in the Workers' Institute on both days. Also performing were George Formby tribute act Joe Thomas and singer Pete Wayre.

The D-Day Darlings raise funds for the Royal British Legion, so far raising £40,000.

The Upper Gornal and Woodsetton ward councillor was speaking as the local authority discussed a report on its Food and Feed Service Plan for the coming year.

Councillors were told 983 food outlets had been inspected by council officers on behalf of the Food Standards Agency during 2017.

Businesses are rated from zero to five for food hygiene and after inspections are given a sticker which they can choose to show at the entrance to their premises.

Public

Councillor Aston said that although the ratings were available on the Food Standards Agency's website, only high scoring food outlets displayed them to the public.

Asking Councillor Ruth Buttery, cabinet member for health and well-being, to write to the Health Secretary supporting the Local Government Association's campaign, he said: "The health impact of unsafe food can be life changing and potentially life ending, particularly for the very young, the very old or those with chronic conditions."

"Displaying ratings would undoubtedly push up food standards."

Success for college's beauty students

TWO students from Halesowen College have come first and third in the regional heats of a National Beauty World Skills competition.

Demi Harper was given first place and Jessica Shortland came third, both are studying a Level Three course in Beauty Therapy.

The World Skills competition focuses on the role and the tasks of a beauty therapist and those taking part had to carry out a back cleanse followed by a back massage, a mini facial with evening make-up and a French polish to fingers.

All of the treatments had to be carried out within a time limit of one hour and 40 minutes.

Standards

Alicia Harper, from Halesowen College, said: "The competition is designed to promote standards and skills across and industry and Demi and Jessica did themselves proud."

"They were observed through all the stages and put all their hard work into practice to a tight deadline."

"We will find out after all the regional heats whether they have got through to the UK final in August."

Demi is aged 18 and lives in Halesowen and Jessica is 19 from Colesey.

Beating victim 19 guided police to attackers

THE victim of a vicious unprovoked beating in Dudley was able to direct police to his attackers by following them.

Darren Hanson was walking in Wolverhampton Street on his way home shortly after midnight on December 3 when Samuel Blezard, 34, and 21-year-old Jordan Ledgister, who had both been drinking, confronted him, Wolverhampton Crown Court was told. The younger man forced him against a window and kicked him, said Mr Lal Amarasinghe, prosecuting. Then both defendants gave Mr Hanson a savage beating, raining down punches and kicks as he lay on the ground.

As the pair left, Blezard picked up a bag which contained a video camera that had been dropped by 46-year-old Mr Hanson. The victim bravely kept the two men in sight after calling the police and giving them a running commentary on their whereabouts.

When questioned Blezard had no recollection of the attack and said mental issues had driven him to drink and drugs but he was trying to get his life back on track, said Mr Ekwall Tiwana, defending. Ledgister, of Brewery Street, Dudley, pleaded guilty to assault and was locked up for 12 months while Blezard, of Selbrook Road, Lye, admitted robbery and was jailed for two years eight months.

Community cafe gets a facelift in revamp

A COMMUNITY cafe in Halesowen has closed for a week for refurbishment and improvements.

Coffee Cups in Thornhill Road, Hasbury, which raises funds for the Halas Homes charity, will re-open on Thursday, July 19 at 9am.

It is getting a new layout and an outside awning area as part of the revamp.

Take a step back and enjoy time in the shade

WHILE the mercury stays high, a shady spot in your outdoor space provides a welcoming retreat, whether under a canopy of trees or a pergola adorned with climbers, writes Hannah Stephenson.

Even just a bench sheltered from the sun by colourful blooms, can provide a comfortable and pretty shaded stop.

While your summer bedding continues to bloom during the heatwave, lush, deep green foliage plants and other cooling specimens will be thriving in the shade.

Here, Mark Sage, head of horticulture at Wyevale Garden Centres, offers some top tips for planting in the shade...

CHANGE EXPECTATIONS

Shade can come from buildings, trees, fences and dominant evergreen plants. Change your expectations of shady planting and think about foliage, form, texture, muted colours and bold drifts.

Many plants do well in shade, as the soil in shady areas can retain moisture and provide ideal growing conditions. One of the joys of planting in the shade is luscious foliage. Rich foliage can be enhanced by adding splashes of colour, with shade-tolerant Busy Lizzies, stocks, violas and nicotiana.

MANAGE DRY SHADE

Dry shade can be a challenge, but it's not an impossible growing condition for plants. The main problem is the lack of light and moisture.

Dry shade can often be found near trees, as their roots take moisture from the soil, as well as at the foot of walls or directly under roofs.

For plants to thrive in dry shade, add as much organic material to the area as possible, such as homemade leaf mould, compost or soil conditioner. This will help retain moisture and improve the soil condition.

USE THE RIGHT FERTILISERS

Using a fertiliser will help add nutrients directly to the soil in a form that plant roots can absorb quickly. Don't use high nitrogen fertilisers, as you want to promote shade-tolerant plant growth and these fertilisers rely on sunlight. Instead, use sulphate of potash, which has a very high potassium content, or wood ash from a bonfire.

FIND OUT THE pH

Use a soil testing kit to check the acidity or alkalinity of your soil because, in particular acid or alkaline soils, plants may not be able to use all the available nutrients and minerals while in others, the nutrients may have been removed. It will also help you choose the right plants for the soil. Plants which are unfussy about the soil include fatsias, astilbes, astrantia and many ferns. Acid-loving plants can do well in shade include rhododendrons, azaleas and hydrangea

ALLOW ROOTS SOME SPACE

When you're planting in the shade, you need to ensure the roots of the new plants go down into cool, moist soil. Fork the base of each planting hole. Even if your plants are tolerant to dry shade, you still need to water them. Give them a good soak before and after you've planted them and keep watering them for the first year until they're established.

When you've planted, mulch the area with a layer of homemade leaf mould or rotted garden compost to retain moisture, prevent weeds, and protect the roots when it's cold.

USE WATER TO CHILL OUT

If you have a pond, it shouldn't be completely in the shade as it will just go stagnant, but subtle green marginal planting with touches of colour from plants such as astilbes and irises will give the area a cool, calming aura.

Good plants around ponds in partial shade include Water horsetail (Equisetum fluviatile), dogwood (Cornus alba), Siberian iris "Caesar's Brother" (Iris sibirica), water forget-me-not (Myosotis scorpioides) and yellow iris (Iris pseudacorus).

USE CLIMBERS TO CREATE SHADE

If you have a structure such as arch or pergola, grow climbers over it in the sun, which will provide you with shade underneath. Climbers which grow over a freestanding structure in the sun often do better than when planted against a wall or fence because there is no restriction of light.

Reinstating wind farm subsidies 'would cut bills'

A GREEN energy expert has called on the Government to reinstate onshore wind subsidies which would help cut energy bills.

Ron Fox was commenting after a new study recently showed that building more onshore wind farms could save householders £1.6 billion on the cost of their electricity.

A total of 7,000 onshore wind turbines generating up to 12 gigawatts of power have been built in the UK.

They are commercially viable thanks to subsidies paid on energy bills. But since this benefit was stopped three years ago development has ground to a halt even though an estimated 1,800 turbines, which could produce an extra four gigawatts of power, have been given planning go-ahead.

"It is incredible that nothing has been done about this since 2015," said Mr Fox, of Noreus Ltd on the University of Keele Science and Innovation Park. "Yet here is a golden opportunity to cut our carbon footprint at the same time as giving residents cheaper energy bills."

Now businesses are lobbying Parliament to revive the sector as they believe that the Building more onshore wind farms could cut householders' energy bills, it has been claimed potential savings were "staggering" according to Lindsay McQuade, chief executive of Scottish Power Renewables, one of the companies that commissioned the report by BVG Associates.

They want ministers to resume offering contracts guaranteeing a price for the electricity they generate, similar to those offered to offshore wind farms and nuclear plants such as Hinkley Point C. This usually is a figure above the market price and it relies on consumers paying "top-up" subsidies.

The BVG study suggests that from 2023 wholesale market prices would be higher than those needed by onshore wind farms, so that they can pay back the extra they received to consumers, which over 15 years would be more than £1.6 billion.

It added that if the onshore wind farms were offered contracts next year they would need £45.60 per megawatt hour compared with the £92.50 per megawatt hour offered to Hinkley Point C nuclear plant.

But some critics say this is an unfair comparison as nuclear power can be generated round the clock while wind farms are dependent on the weather.

One unexpected benefit from offshore wind farms, as opposed to onshore wind farms, is that the latest two-year study backed by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds has shown that seagulls were observed changing their flight path to avoid the turbines.

The project, commissioned by 11 offshore wind developers, looked at more than 600,000 videos which recorded only six collisions with birds, far fewer than scientists previously thought.

But ornithologists have called for more research in more locations onshore and offshore closer to seabird colonies.

Summer holidays will fly by outside in the garden

Report by Hannah Stephenson

THE thoughts of school holidays fill some parents with dread.

But if you can get your kids engaged in gardening – or at least off their screens and into the fresh air – the weeks will fly by.

Award-winning garden designer and mother-of-two Ann-Marie Powell – who designed the BBC Countryfile's 30th anniversary garden at this year's RHS Hampton Court Palace Flower Show – says wildlife and growing-your-own could be just the magnet you need to lure youngsters outside.

Here, she shares eight ways to get your kids into the garden this summer...

CREATE A VEG PATCH NEAR PLAY EQUIPMENT

"We have a little veg plot at the end of our garden where all the herbs are, and I always grow food particularly for them to scrump," says Powell. "The plot is close to their trampoline, so they go down there and I'll say, 'Boys, while you're down there can you get me some basil', or, 'Pick me some peas', or whatever is in season."

"Now they know all of the herbs and veg and they notice wildlife like ladybirds."

KEEP BINOCULARS HANDY

Powell says: "We have some binoculars in our living room, as luckily we are surrounded by trees. They love looking through the binoculars to see what they can see."

AMUSE THEM WITH APPS

If they really can't be separated from their phones, load some apps to your advantage. "They have this app where you record the birdsong and the app will identify the bird (warblr.co.uk and ChirpOMatic.com are popular choices)," says Powell. "When we get back, we can then look the birds up in a book."

"If you talk to them about wildlife, they'll want to know all about it."

If they're really keen to know the name of a plant or flower, there are various plant identification apps which will do the job, including FlowerChecker (flowerchecker.com) and PlantSnap (plantsnap.com), where you take a photo of the plant and the app will endeavour to identify it.

GO ON FAMILY WALKS

"I have two children, Archie, 14, and Gilbert, nine, and like all children these days, they are addicted to the internet," says Powell. "So every Sunday we go for a family walk, which we've done for years, and look at the landscape. It's fantastic family time and it means they're experiencing a little bit of the great outdoors. They almost always moan about it but as soon as we get out there, they are changed children. And we talk."

VISIT NATURE RESERVES

Powell says: "Since the boys were little, we have been to nature reserves. Straight away, their shoes were off, they were walking through the streams, swinging in the trees – they always have great fun."

Building a den is a great exercise for children and creates a place for them to use their imagination

Deep concentration from this young girl sowing seeds

CREATE A WILDLIFE HAVEN

"We have lots of plants for pollinators in our garden and you'll find a massive list from the RHS (rhs.org.uk), from echinaceas to rose," says Powell. "They attract insects, which create interest for children in the garden."

ENCOURAGE THEM TO GROW THINGS

"Try sowing seeds," says Powell. "My kids like sowing big seeds, slightly weird-looking, and they want to know what the plants are going to be like and what they will produce. Peas and beans are so easy and they grow really quickly, and sunflowers are brilliant – the bigger, the better."

ENCOURAGE INSECTS INTO THE GARDEN

"We often see staghorn beetles on our walks, and the bigger the better. Kids are interested in bugs, but we are seeing less of them, which is why we need to plant pollinating plants," says Powell.

"When I've cut back long grasses, they've made hollow stems – so we've put the stems together, bunched them up and put them in trees to make bug houses."

Children learn about herbs and wildlife in a vegetable patch

GIVE THEM SPACE FOR A DEN

"Kids love to be able to call a space their own, where they can use their imagination. Dens are brilliant and they can make a right old mess out of old bamboo sticks or cut-off branches."

"You could even plant bamboo plants and bend over the stems. They'll make it into an absolute horror but it's theirs, they need to own it," Powell adds. "Put the idea in their head by, say, reading them a book at bedtime about dens and suggest they could do that in the garden."

Have Faith! It's the First Lady of R'n'B

American singer Faith Evans will return to the UK to headline a major tour. The Grammy-winning star has been in the public eye for more than 25 years and has enjoyed a successful career as a singer and actress.

She'll play songs from her hit 2017 album The King & I, recorded with her late husband, The Notorious B.I.G., when she takes to the stage at Birmingham's O2 Institute on Saturday.

The record was released to mark the 20th Anniversary of the passing of the Notorious B.I.G.

The death of her husband has left a void. "There is still no closure for us, but we just got tired of fighting what seemed to be a never-ending battle. It's not any easier for us today 20 years later than it was for us at seven or eight years.

"The funny thing is I didn't plan for our album to drop last year, it was supposed to drop the year before. But to me it's the little things that let me know that Big approves the album because there were lots of little ways that I felt he was a part of the process."

Faith is already working on a biopic based on her 2009 memoir, Keep the Faith, which chronicles her life and career, including her marriage to Biggie and his much-publicized infidelity.

Despite the drama that transpired between Faith, Lil' Kim and other women involved with Biggie in the autobiography, the songstress makes it clear it won't be heavily played onscreen.

"I'm the executive producer on it, and I'm working closely with the screenwriters. It's definitely not going to be something other than what I would want to see. I like to be very tactful - but honest."

Faith says The King and I was a cathartic project. "The title actually was divine inspiration. I didn't have a list of like, any thoughts of what the album title was going to be, but funny enough that's the first thing that just dropped in my lap before I recorded one song."

COMFORTABLE

She was glad to make peace with Lil' Kim on there.

"Well I don't know... because like you said, I haven't had those feelings in a while. I can't speak for her whenever she felt like, "OK, it's time to kind of let it go," but thankfully she's in a different place. I really don't know when. I've seen her several times in passing throughout the years, but then when we were rehearsing for the Bad Boy Tour was probably the first time I actually had a full conversation with her since back when we actually hung out.

"You know, back in the day. That was - I won't say different because it's not like I don't know who Kim is - but it was different just to feel comfortable. I felt like she understood where I was coming from; it was a feeling. She actually was receptive and as soon as I asked her about being on the album, she's like, "Of course!" So I don't think that was the defining moment of a hatchet being buried or anything. In previous times, it was never like she didn't say hello back if I said hi. I always said hi if I saw her, but [the Bad Boy Tour] was certainly a forum where we got to see each other a little more often. Doing shows every day, I would stop in her dressing room and play with her baby and stuff like that. The tour certainly was a catalyst for the recovery of our relationship, I would say."

Faith thinks about her whirlwind relationship with Biggie on a daily basis. Her memories are ever-present and she reflects constantly on the impact he had on her life.

"I can't say I think about it like, 'What if we didn't get married?' but I can't say that I've never reflected on it like, 'Yeah, we did move really fast'. We're doing a documentary with A&E Films about Big, and I just recently saw the rough cut and there were some clips of interview pieces of him that I had never heard. He was like, 'You know, maybe she won't admit it but I'll admit it. We were moving too fast and everything, but we was in love!' So obviously what he was saying was probably in response to someone asking him about how fast, but we fell in love! We did, and knowing that things would definitely not be the same in so many ways, I'm glad that I was already prepared to kind of look at the bigger picture in many ways with things."

Faith wasn't actually a huge fan of Biggie's before they got married. "I wasn't familiar with his music prior to when we met. He probably had Party & Bull-t and maybe the Mary song that he was on Real Love, but I

I was a church girl. It's not that I didn't listen to secular music, but I wasn't hip-hop savvy didn't really know who he was. I was a church girl. It's not that I didn't listen to secular music, but I wasn't the most hip-hop savvy. But Puff had a Father's Day party which was the first night he ended up going home with me and we made love and all that. But when I saw him on stage, I was just blown away. I'm just in the audience like, 'Oh, he's performing?' because he'd just kept asking me was I coming to this party and I saw him on stage. I didn't know any of the songs either, but I just was looking at him and just how he had the crowd and how he didn't have to do that much because he just had a certain confidence and swagger. I was like, 'wow'. Then after the show, everybody was just clamoring around him and they was like, 'Where you going?' and he was like, 'I'm going with her'. I was like, 'Oh, OK! Come on, daddy!'"

Ocean Colour Scene

OCS and Kaiser Chiefs have days at the races

Two of the nation's favourite rock bands will be bringing the long hot summer to a rousing finale at Wolverhampton Racecourse on August 31 and September 1 – and both events follow a day at the races.

Britpop outfit Ocean Colour Scene, from Birmingham, will perform at the racecourse on the Friday. The group had five top 10 albums including a number one in 1997, Marchin' Already. Hit singles include The Day We Caught The Train and The Riverboat Song. At one stage, they were Britain's second biggest-selling band, beaten only by their mates, Oasis, and 1996 triple platinum album Moseley Shoals remains the go-to record for fans of Britpop.

Singer Simon Fowler went from being a newspaper reporter to fronting the biggest thing since Oasis, an overnight success after seven years. Midlands gigs always have a special resonance for OCS and they'll make everyone a winner after this day at the races.

The following evening Leeds rockers The Kaiser Chiefs, featuring hyperactive frontman Ricky Wilson, will mark the highlight of the Ladies Day meeting at the Dunstall Park track. The Brit Award-winning quartet are best known for hit songs such as Ruby, I Predict A Riot, Everyday I Love You Less and Less, and Ricky made a lot of new fans during his spell as a judge on the BBC TV version of The Voice.

For more information see www.wolverhampton-racecourse.co.uk website.

Band didn't come home too soon

THEIR break – all 13 years of it – lasted longer than the lifespan of most rock bands.

And yet when Scottish rockers Del Amitri returned in 2014, their audience were still waiting.

Having formed in Glasgow in 1983 and released four top 10 albums, Del Amitri are planning a series of summer headline shows, including a night at Birmingham's Symphony Hall on Monday.

Frontman Justin Currie, pictured, is pleased that fans have stuck around to listen to such hits as Nothing Ever Happens, Kiss This Thing Goodbye and Always The Last To Know, as well as Roll to Me and Don't Come Home Too Soon.

He spent much of the band's 13-year hiatus working on solo work but was please to reform the band.

"After we reformed for a few weeks of gigs in 2014 we enjoyed the experience so much that we thought we'd do it again someday.

"An offer to do Edinburgh Castle came in, and having made such an arse of it in the nineties we thought it might be good to try and make amends. Four years felt like a decent enough period of time to stay out of people's faces. So we're just doing a week of shows, finishing at Glasgow Barrowlands Ballroom, a venue we've been desperate to get back to for 17 years."

Fans can expect the hits when Del Amitri take to the stage in Birmingham. They avoided playing new material in 2014, so as to give punters a comprehensive review of their output between 1985 and 2002.

"We feared the whole audience might sod off to the bogs as soon as we played something unfamiliar. This time we have given ourselves a little more leeway so we'll try some new things and see if we can make them fit."

The ladies are back to crack the code of a new series

As New Order sang in their 1990 World Cup anthem World in Motion, "When something's good it's never gone."

That certainly seems to be the case with The Bletchley Circle.

ITV launched the first series in 2012 with a cast led by Anna Maxwell Martin, Rachael Stirling, Sophie Rundle and Julie Graham. They played women who met during the Second World War when they worked as codebreakers at Bletchley Park, deciphering messages from the Nazis.

Seven years after the end of the conflict, they were all bored with their ordinary, domestic lives and looking for a challenge - which came in the form of several suspicious deaths that one of the gang believes are linked and are the work of a serial killer.

Maxwell Martin quit before series two, which involved the remaining members trying to clear the name of another former comrade as she awaits trial for the murder of an old flame.

That run ended in 2014 and ITV decided not to recommission the period drama for a third run, despite the fact that it helped boost the presence of women on screen by having four female leads.

Four years on, the show is back - but not the same as it was before. It's been snapped up by the US streaming service BritBox, who have produced a new version that sees two members of the original team - those played by Stirling and Graham - transported to San Francisco.

"In 2018, BritBox will up the ante with our first commission, more co-productions and more popular programming and star power from all genres appealing to new subscribers along with our very loyal existing members," said the company's president Soumya Sriraman when the show was announced, before adding: "With this new continuation, we have the chance to build on its amazing legacy and give its loyal fans an exciting new chapter."

The Bletchley Circle isn't the first show to receive a new lease of life thanks to an online firm - the same thing happened to Ripper Street when the BBC axed it, only for Amazon Prime to give it a new lease of life.

When we meet up with Jean and Millie again it's 1956. Jean uncovers evidence that suggests the killer who murdered a Bletchley girl during the war may be up to his old tricks in the city by the Bay. They set sail for America in the hope of teaming up with one of their US counterparts who was employed at the famous Presidio.

Using a scrap of wartime code, they locate the woman in question, Iris, a musician and maths genius who, along with her engineering protégé Hailey, agrees to lend a hand.

Their investigation takes them deep into the heart of the Fillmore District and closer than ever before to a killer who doesn't just take the lives of his victims, he mutilates them too.

Iris struggles to cope with the pressure - can she hold it together to make sure justice is done?

The Bletchley Circle: San Francisco, Wednesday, ITV, 9pm

BEST OF THE REST

MONDAY
Who Do You Think You Are? BBC1, 9pm
 Singer Boy George knows that his maternal grandmother was found wandering the streets of Dublin as a small child and put in a children's home, and also heard that one of his great uncles was hanged in Dublin's Mountjoy jail and is somehow connected to Kevin Barry, who was commemorated in an Irish rebel song. As George uncovers the grim details of what really happened to his grandmother and his great uncle, he also delights in a new sense of his family being truly part of Irish history.

Who Is America? Channel 4, 10pm
 Some viewers may have wonder if the reason why Sacha Baron Cohen apparently moved away from the satirical shows and films that made his name is because he simply got too famous. In theory, after you've starred in an Oscar-nominated, worldwide box-office hit like Borat, even politicians who don't normally keep up with cult comedy should start to recognise you. However, it turns out that we've underestimated Baron Cohen's mastery of disguise. He's spent the past year undercover and has managed to secure meetings with figures across the US political spectrum - including Sarah Palin, who claimed in an angry Facebook post that she had been 'eduped' into an interview. So, don't be surprised to see some big names being skewered in the second episode of his new series.

TUESDAY
Love Your Garden ITV, 8pm
 Alan Titchmarsh and his team of experts return to transform the backyards of some of the nation's most deserving people. Their destination this week is Fareham near Southampton where they surprise 90-year-old Betty Hicks, a fearless life-long volunteer and fundraiser. Betty's last epic adventure saw her abseil down Portsmouth Harbour's 170 metre-high Spinnaker Tower in 2016 to raise money for a condition known as macular degeneration - a gradual loss of sight prevalent in the elderly, of which she suffers. Despite her get-up-and-go attitude, Betty's garden is a green-free concrete box, with many levels and trip hazards, so the team set about transforming it into a safe, and sensory haven. Inspired by Betty's love of vivid colour, the team creates an elegant formal garden that's brimming with the brightest of shades.

WEDNESDAY
Live Well For Longer Channel 4, 8pm
 Presenters Kate Quilton and Tamal Ray, along with roving reporter Morland Sanders, continue their trawl through various topics in a bid to make us all healthier and happier. Once upon a time, the word 'stress' was never mentioned; these days, it's everywhere. The hosts reveal ways in which viewers can prove whether they're suffering from it before turning their attention to relieving the condition, including - believe it or not - singing. This week's big experiment looks at food that may be able to bring down blood pressure and sees Professor Adrian Brady from the University of Glasgow put porridge oats, beetroot and coconut water to the test.

Who Do You Think You Are?, Monday, BBC1, 9pm

THURSDAY
Eat, Shop, Save ITV, 7.30pm
 As budgets get tighter and obesity levels rise, it's clear that the task of teaching Brits how to shop for healthy food without breaking the bank is just too big for Gregg Wallace and Chris Bavin to tackle alone. So, in addition to BBC1's Eat Well for Less?, we're also getting a new series of this not-altogether-dissimilar show, which challenges families to eat better, get fitter and save money. Over the course of the current run, presenter Ranvir Singh and her team of experts - chef and nutritionist Dale Pinnock, savvy shopper Kate Hardcastle and fitness consultant Tom Pitfield - will meet a dad with an addiction to energy drinks and a single mum who is worried that her own bad habits will affect her children. But first up are the Bassett family from Country Durham, who need to find a cheaper, healthier alternative to takeaways.

FRIDAY
The Crystal Maze Channel 4, 8pm
 Richard Ayoade guides a team calling themselves the London Girls through the four zones of the Maze, tackling a range of skill, mystery, physical and mental challenges.

New turbocharged engine joins the Kia Picanto range

By James Parker

Kia has now added a turbocharged engine to its Picanto line-up, completing the range which was updated in 2017. The new 1.0-litre powerplant produces 99bhp and 171Nm of torque — making it the most powerful Picanto to date.

The new engine is available as an upgrade for cars in GT-Line and GT-Line S trims, and sits above the existing naturally aspirated engines – a 1.0-litre three-cylinder and 1.25-litre four-cylinder with 67bhp and 84bhp respectively.

The new engine is capable of 0-60mph in 9.8 seconds and has a top speed of 112mph. That's just on par with the 89bhp Volkswagen up! TSI, but the 109bhp Renault Twingo GT tops it by a few tenths. The Picanto is capable of returning impressive fuel economy figures though – with a combined figure of 55.4mpg and CO2 emissions of 117g/km. It's fully compliant with Euro 6d emissions regulations, too.

This fresh unit does come at a price, as it's only available on the top-end GT-Line and GT-Line S trims. Both add dynamic details to the Picanto, including a sports body kit, red highlights on the grille, air intakes and side sills, a rear diffuser and twin exhaust pipes.

S models add in extra luxury in the form of an electric sunroof, climate control, heated front seats, a wireless phone charger and sat-nav with TomTom connected services.

The new engine is only available as an upgrade

In the best Kia tradition, the Picanto comes with an industry-leading seven-year warranty, compared with just three years on most rivals.

The GT-Line model equipped with the new engine starts at £13,320, while GT-Line S models come in from £14,720. The challenge for the Picanto is that this price puts it in line with the significantly more powerful Volkswagen up! GTI, which starts from £13,255.

● Kia Motors (UK) Ltd. has been awarded 'Company of the Last 30 Years' at the annual Auto Express New Car Awards. This is a special accolade, part of a group of awards celebrating not only the best in the industry, but also Auto Express' 30th anniversary.

Since arriving in the UK in 1991, with one model in the line-up, Kia has evolved to become one of the biggest-selling automotive brands in the UK, offering a line-up of 21 models available across its 192-strong dealer network. With the recent launch of the ground-breaking all-new Stinger, the fastest-accelerating model in Kia's history as well as an upcoming update to the UK and global best-seller, the Sportage, perceptions of the Kia brand has been altered to many.

Collecting the award, Paul Philpott, president and CEO of Kia Motors (UK) Ltd, said: "It is an honour to be presented with this award – it is a real testament to how far the brand has come since arriving in the UK. We are very proud of our product line-up and are looking forward to the brand's continued growth and even more exciting things to come in the future."

Steve Fowler, editor-in-chief at Auto Express, commented: "In less than 30 years, Kia's product range has grown from the cheap and cheerful Pride supermini, sold through an importer, to encompass fabulous SUVs, and a sports saloon that has rattled the premium establishment. Owners love their Kias: two featured in the top ten models in this year's Driver Power survey, and the Niro was rated best small SUV to own."

Kia was also recognised in three additional categories, with Picanto being commended in the City Car of the Year category. Making it onto the shortlist nominations was the Sorento for Large SUV of the Year and the all-new Stinger, Kia's first gran turismo, for Compact Executive Car of the Year.

This unit is only available on the top-end GT-Line and GT-Line S trims

The missing piece of the self-driving puzzle is intelligent algorithms, not more sensors, rules and maps

Trial and error is best way to perfect autonomous cars

An autonomous car has used artificial intelligence to improve its driving skills within 20 minutes.

Engineers from Cambridge University have developed so-called "reinforcement learning" which enables the vehicle to improve its ability to stay in lane with some initial guidance from a human.

The team at Wayve showed how a Renault fitted with the technology used trial and error to correctly follow a lane, without the use of sensors and engineered rules as other self-driving cars work.

At first, the car swerves to the side, requiring regular intervention from the safety driver.

With each correction, the AI makes fewer mistakes, eventually learning how to properly stay in lane unaided.

"The missing piece of the self-driving puzzle is intelligent algorithms, not more sensors, rules and maps," said Wayve co-Founder and chief executive Amar Shah.

"Humans have a fascinating ability to perform complex tasks in the real world, because our brains allow us to learn quickly and transfer knowledge across our many experiences. We want to give our vehicles better brains, not more hardware."

Wayve envisages AI reinforcement learning being used further in the future to deal with everything from traffic lights to roundabouts and intersections.

History of the Jeep

Jeeps came from need for cheap four-wheel-drive suitable for military use

The original jeep was produced 75 years ago through the enforced union of Willys-Overland and Ford, after the US Army set manufacturers against one another in a competition to design and build a cheap four-wheel-drive vehicle suitable for military use.

At that time scout vehicles were confined to motorcycles and sidecars from World War I together with modified versions of the Ford Model T.

What the army wanted was a new kind of utility transport – lightweight and four-wheel-drive – with the first prototype ready to roll within seven weeks.

137 companies were invited to submit designs but only Ford, Willys-Overland, and the American Bantam Car Company (ABCC) did so. The initial contract for 70 jeeps was given to Bantam as the only manufacturer which actually made the deadline.

ABCC, makers of the American Austin Seven, had the advantage of already working on a similar vehicle but they only had a very small workforce and production unit.

When it came to the crunch their model failed to withstand the robust military testing.

By that time World War II had broken out so the other two bidders – Willys-Overland and The Ford Motor Company – were given free access to the Bantam plans and prototype; Willys then produced the Quad, while Ford came up with the Pygmy.

Fabulous F-PACE ferries top 'girl' on a tourist trip

By Sharon Walters

It was quite a challenge – giving the chief executive of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts a whistle stop tour of the Western Highlands based on Fort William.
A woman extremely well world travelled.

There would be five of us in total to transport around and fortunately I managed to arrange a test of the fabulous Jaguar F-PACE Sport with the 3.0 V6 engine to efficiently and comfortably get us around a few hundred miles of sight-seeing.

It's dynamic, stylish and did very well as a mini tour bus! It has a 650 litre boot, useful for our luggage and picnics, and easily seats three in the back. It really is a full-size, mid-size crossover.

This F-Pace has 300bhp and AWD. Even laden with the five of us and luggage, it was quick off the mark when I needed it to be and thoroughly enjoyed (as I did) the winding magnificent roads of the western highlands.

The eight-speed automatic transmission with Jaguar sequential shift was a pure joy – this fantastic gearbox is very responsive as needed and when we did hit slow traffic (rare in these parts) took the stress and strain of creeping along.

For a 'tall' Jaguar the F-Pace steers, rides and handles just as you would expect a 'normal' Jaguar to. Even on those fantastic winding Scottish roads there was little roll, it grips well going into the corners and comes out ready to on in another straight line without seeming to blink. It's slick and accurate and if you take the dampers out of standard mode and into dynamic – wowee! And much of that performance comes from back when this car was out being tested, with a lot of development work done on winding Welsh roads.

The driving is good, as you would expect from a taller car, and it's also good for those tourists sitting in the back seat.

Trim quality and build quality are extremely good and specification is better than the opposition. On the Sport it includes LED tail lights, 2-zone climate control, all-surface progress, hill launch assist, tyre repair system, InControl Touch Navigation, Apps and Wi-Fi, autonomous emergency braking, lane departure warning, dynamic stability control and traffic sign recognition and intelligent speed limiter. Going back to InControl, what a well-thought out system – better than similar systems in some of the opposition.

Official figures are 47.1mpg on a combined cycle and I managed 44mpg and I was pleased with that bearing in mind the miles I travelled. 0-60mph comes in 5.8 seconds and Co2 emissions are 159 g/km. If you want better economy the F-PACE can also be had with the Wolverhampton-built Ingenium, 2.0litre diesel or if you want even more pace and money is not problem,, there's the supercharged 3.0litre V6 with 375bhp and 0-60mph in 5.1 seconds.

Priced from £52,665 on-the-road.

West Midland drivers not ready for electric car revolution

Three in four drivers believe the country is acting too slowly in preparation for a surge in demand for electric cars.

With the 2040 deadline for a ban on petrol and diesel models now being recommended to be brought forward by 10 years, drivers dread what the future might look like with one in two Brits fearing they might not be able to complete even routine journeys.

Research conducted by independent car buying site carwow revealed that a lack of charging points is the biggest worry among motorists (72 per cent).

Despite pledges to increase the number of charging points around the UK to 70,000 by 2020 (an increase of 87 per cent on current numbers) and London boroughs leading the way with 2,630 more points (a 300 per cent increase) by 2019, drivers are still not convinced this is enough – or that it will become reality.

Asked what their biggest fears are about a lack of charging points, drivers in West Midlands revealed that it is being unable to complete essential journeys (45 per cent), running out of power and being stranded (63 per cent) and facing long queues at charging points (41 per cent).

This uncertainty is putting drivers off switching away from petrol or diesel models, 31 per cent of those surveyed admitted.

The other factors stopping greater adoption of electric vehicles are the expense of charging a car (46 per cent) and the cost of the cars themselves (61 per cent).

Despite this, however, the necessity to change remains a factor and 16 per cent of motorists admit they do believe their next car will be an electric or hybrid.

Millennials are first in the queue to go green with one in 20 ready to switch away from petrol and diesel for good. More men (74 per cent) than women (53 per cent) are willing to take the plunge.

Newcastle leads the way as the UK's electric hotspot, with 17 per cent of drivers surveyed by carwow saying they're prepared to buy an EV in the next 18-24 months, followed by Bristol (16 per cent), London (15 per cent) and Birmingham (12 per cent).

To do their bit for the environment, 45 per cent of drivers said they'd be willing to go up to 10 per cent above their current new car budget – but a larger 58 per cent believe the government should permanently incentivise the purchase of an EV or hybrid.

The most popular EV with carwow's two million monthly visitors remains the Nissan Leaf (38 per cent of electric car specifications in May), ahead of the Renault Zoe (28 per cent).

A lack of charging points is the biggest worry among motorists

Alex Rose, trading director at carwow, says: "We've seen demand for electric cars stall in 2018 so far, due to drivers' uncertainty over what the future looks like.

"Motorists are constantly asking 'will there be enough charging points?' 'how long will it take to charge my car?' and 'will the price of electric cars ever come down?'

"It needs to be a confident choice for a driver to make, especially with the petrol and diesel deadline looming. Consumer confidence, or a lack thereof doesn't just impact sales; manufacturers are dragging their feet with electric production whilst the vehicles aren't selling and that's having an additional impact on lead time, which results in an additional obstacle for drivers.

"Now is the time for a joined up approach from the motoring industry and local and central government to build the infrastructure Britain needs for an all-electric future."

Bhylls Acre School were runners-up in the competition behind Stowheath

Bunkered – Palmers Cross School pupils during the Wolverhampton Primary Tri Golf Festival

Youngsters from St Thomas's Primary putt their skills to the test

Stowheath leave school rivals green with envy

SPORTING FEATURE

By Nick Elwell

"We are keen to introduce youngsters to the sport and James will be holding some summer camps during the holidays."

STOWHEATH Primary School are top of the class when it comes to golf.

Youngsters from the school claimed victory in the Wolverhampton Primary Tri Golf Festival, held at Penn Golf Club.

The popular annual event continues to go from strength to strength with 30 schools from the city taking part in the qualifying rounds. Six schools – Stowheath, St Thomas C of E, St Andrews C of E, Palmers Cross, Bhylls Acre, and Rakegate – battled their way through to the final shootout for glory.

And it was Stowheath who came out on top with Bhylls Acre claiming the runners-up spot and St Andrews C of E completing the top three.

It meant the trio of schools were able to go on to represent Wolverhampton at the Black Country Games.

Enjoyed

Partnerships and Schools Sports (PASS) worked with Penn Golf Club to stage the final, with the host club deeming it a huge success.

"There were 66 pupils from six schools taking part and they all seemed to have enjoyed the day," said Penn GC secretary Mick Woodhouse.

"They were from the schools that had won the various festivals that were held during the spring term in secondary schools across Wolverhampton."

"There were six different events featuring various challenges for the youngsters. We closed down the first and second holes and also used the putting green. "And there was a bunker challenge which they all enjoyed. It was a great day and it ended with our lady captain, Angela Hughes, and club professional, James Wright, presenting the prizes."

Rakegate Primary were among those taking part

Penn are pro-active when it comes to encouraging junior participation and Woodhouse is hoping the event will help produce golfers of the future.

"It's great to see youngsters getting an introduction to the sport," he said.

"This was probably the first time some of them had played on a golf course."

"There were several parents there supporting their children and from the club's point of view it would be great if a few of the youngsters took up the sport and joined our junior section."

"We are keen to introduce youngsters to the sport and James will be holding some summer camps during the holidays.

"We have managed to obtain some funding from the golf foundation to help with the cost."

As well as the primary school participants, there were also a number of secondary school students from Our Lady and St Chads on hand to ensure the event ran smoothly.

Rebecca Gingell, school games organiser/director of specialism at Our Lady & St Chad Catholic Academy, said: "Pupils from Our Lady and St Chad Academy officiated and led the year four pupils through all the activities."

"It was a great day, providing young people with the opportunity to play golf on a real golf course and start on the club pathway. A big thank you to the club and OLSC for the support and delivery of the day."

Boss Moore's merry over Scottish trip

ALBION boss Darren Moore says his side have taken plenty of positives from their pre-season trip to Scotland.

The Baggies have been ramping up their preparations for the 2018/19 campaign by taking part in a gruelling training camp at St Andrew's University.

Those put through their paces included new goalkeeper Sam Johnstone as well as James Morrison, who is battling to prove his fitness and earn a new deal.

And Moore said he was pleased with the progress his players made. "In terms of the group moving to the next stage of our preparations, I couldn't be more satisfied," the boss said.

"The group have applied themselves really, really well."

"We're seeing good signs developing within the group," he added.

"The application from the players has been magnificent in terms of their going about their work and achieving here what we set out to do."

Golf day in memory of late, great Cyrille

AN Albion supporters' club is holding a golf day in memory of Cyrille Regis that will be attended by his widow Julia.

Alan Jones-Bratt, founder of the West Bromwich Albion Supporters' Golf Club, has organised the Cyrille Regis Memorial Golf Day at Sandwell Park Golf Club for Friday, August 17.

As well as honouring Regis's memory, any money raised will be donated to the family. Julia has agreed to play a round and will be entering a team of four. She said: "It's wonderful they want to honour Cyrille's legacy by dedicating the day to his memory."

Former Albion and Villa boss Ron Atkinson and ex-Villa player Steve Staunton could also play. Jones-Bratt is looking for sponsors and players keen to join in.

Julia is also planning to organise her own golf day to remember Cyrille at a later date. To play in, or to sponsor the memorial golf day, call 07786708362. The closing date for entries is August 3.

Diffusion are spot on to net national spoils

DIFFUSION FC Veterans defied the heatwave and a stern test to put their rivals on the spot in a national competition.

The Wolverhampton side overcame a Walthamstow-based Interwood side featuring Barry Hayles and Leon Constantine to be crowned as Over-40s national champions on penalties.

The shoot-out success in three national final at Lilleshall followed a 1-1 draw in normal time. Paul Whyte had equalised for Diffusion.

"It was a really hot day and we were up against a very good and physical side, but the game was played in a great atmosphere," said Diffusion player-manager Andrew Sperling.

Successful penalty takers for Diffusion were former professionals Dean Bennett and Jake Sedgemore, captain and man-of-the-match Rob Perks, and Whyte.

"There were 22 very tired players coming off at the end in such hot conditions, but we went off and had a couple of beers to celebrate," said Sperling.

Tyler will warm up for this title shot

TYLER Denny will warm-up for his English title tilt with a six-round headline bout at Walsall Town Hall on Saturday.

The Rowley Regis middleweight boxer – signed to Black Country Boxing – is set to face Leeds' Reece Cartwright for the English crown, as ordered by the British Boxing Board of Control that he will compete for the English crown.

With the contest out at purse bids, BCB's head of boxing, Errol Johnson, has moved quickly to get reigning Midlands Area middleweight champion Denny ready for his title tilt with a warm up bout.

"It's important to get Tyler out," Johnson said. "Tyler's last fight was a six-rounder in May so he needs a few rounds in before starting camp for the Cartwright fight."

Also on the bill this weekend is BCB's new signing at super bantamweight, James Beech Junior.

The Bloxwich native is joined by Walsall's Shaun Cooper (super lightweight) and Levi Ferguson (super welterweight). Wolverhampton cruiserweight Antony Woolery is also in action.

Tickets are on sale now from the Walsall Town Hall box office.

Tournament was TV triumph but final is a turn off

FRANCE'S victory over Croatia attracted the smallest UK TV audience for a World Cup final since current records began.

An average 11.4 million people watched from kick-off to final whistle, according to overnight ratings – 8.6 million on BBC One and 2.8 million on ITV.

The figure is almost half the number who saw France last win the World Cup in 1998.

Some 22.2million watched that match, the biggest UK audience for a World Cup final since comparable records began in 1981.

Ratings for this year's final could have been hit by the warm weather and the game taking place in the late afternoon, rather than a prime-time slot in the evening.

It is also likely that many viewers lost interest in the tournament after England were beaten by Croatia in the semi-final.

That particular match, shown by ITV, was watched from kick-off to final whistle by an average 24.3 million people – the highest ever audience for a football game on a single UK television channel.

England's quarter-final victory over Sweden set a new record for the BBC's most-viewed programme online, with 3.8 million live requests.

Darcey is a big hit on the world stage

Darcey Hawkes

A FUTURE karate star from Dudley has already tasted success at the World Championships at the tender age of seven.

Darcey Hawkes started practising karate when she was three and four years later she has won a bronze medal on the global stage.

Both Darcey and her older brother Harvey, aged 15, were part of the Great British karate squad taking part in the Championships held in Dundee, Scotland.

But even though Harvey just missed out on a medal in his age group, his fourth-placed finish was incredibly impressive considering he was one of the youngest in his category.

"He's still beating himself up a bit," admitted proud mum Julie Hawkes. "It's the first time ever he didn't medal, but he was competing against people two years older than him because the category was 15 to 17.

"Darcey got a bronze She has been doing it since she was three, as soon as we could get a karate suit on her she was in one."

Harvey and Darcey, who live in Quarry Bank, both train at Dudley Shukokai Karate with their aunt, Mandie Read, who is an England coach for the AKA Karate team.

Stour secure losing draw to stay top

STOURBRIDGE remain undefeated at the top of Division Three of the Birmingham and District League.

Handsworth put themselves in a strong position by scoring 357 for four off 55 overs but the home side got themselves out of jail by holding on to the last wicket and forcing a losing draw. Opener Waseem Mazhar and number three Renrick Hooper took the score from 36 for one to 177 for two. Mazhar bowled by Nathan Crudeli for 76.

The punishing run rate continued from Hooper with the number four Bevon Brown, together they put on 179 pushing the run rate to 6.5 runs an over. Hooper remained not out on 167 (that included 15 fours and ten sixes) and Brown was out in the final over bowled by Crudeli for 73.

Stour faced their first outright defeat of the season as they crumbled to 85 for four. Paceman Winston Lewis took the wicket of Juhar Johal (5), Matt Bradley (17), Harshad Patel (21) and the prized wicket of ex-Handsworth skipper Marvarick Pery (0). Things turned from bad to worse when skipper Josh Banks was bowled by Kenrick Smith for 12.

Hopes of Stour victory faded despite the 84 between Dwayne Crossgill and Crudeli, when Crossgill was caught in the covers for 43 off Brown. Crudeli and batsman Jitesh Jivan-Patel progressed the score from 169 to 225 for seven when Crudeli was caught for 79. Jivan-Patel (67) was run out off the final delivery but helped Stour secure a losing draw.

New club makes fun the priority

A STOURBRIDGE resident has started a local walking football group and is keen for folks to get involved.

Kevin Weston, aged 58, a lifelong football fan, says he wants to form a group that despite being competitive, has fun and a sense of togetherness at its core.

"I've been with other clubs and it's all very serious," he said. "I played indoor football many years ago, but walking football has made me remember why I enjoyed playing so much."

The club, which currently has up to ten members, is looking for new players. Contact Kevin via email at kevinwesto.nuk@yahoo.com.

SEDGLEY & Gornal United are among five teams joining the Beacon Sunday Football League.

The future for the Dudley and Wolverhampton-based league looks bright after it announced an increase in club membership for the forthcoming campaign with 19 signed up so far.

Not only have the Beacon Sunday Football League (BSFL) accepted five new teams so far – and it is still not too late to join the ranks – the afternoon set up have confirmed the introduction of a new match day initiative.

From the start of the new league season on September 2 member clubs have adopted the use of roll on/roll off substitutions for all competitions.

"This bold move is designed to give players a greater match day experience," said league co-founder and general secretary David Clinton.

Opportunity

"You have to take positive steps at our level of football and we've decided to give teams the opportunity with roll on/roll off substitutes. Under the new rule, teams will be allowed to name five substitutes and use them at anytime in a game."

"Anything that assists the clubs retain player interest, which roll on/roll off will do, can only make them stronger and in turn will help us with team retainment. It's got to be the way forward."

In another new move the BSFL with kick off the season with two separate sections. Two titles will be up for grabs, the established Beacon Championship and the new Development division, ideal for newly formed teams. It is hoped to introduce an over-30s Seniors section.

"We will still accept team applications until July 31 for the two main divisions, whereas the proposed seniors section is a little more flexible," said Clinton. Call 07964 730275.

Among the teams are AFC Pensnett Panthers, AFC Sporting Gornal, Dynamo Dudley, Penn Rovers, Sedgley & Gornal United.

Enville duo book trip to Portugal

TEENAGE amateur Aidan Kingsbury produced a devastating round with PGA professional Richard Copsey to win the Lombard Trophy Midlands regional final on home soil at Envile Golf Club.

They swept aside their rivals to card a dominant 11 par round of 61 to win by five shots ahead of their nearest challengers, Jamie Hillier and Ashley Wilding, of Solihull's Robin Hood Golf Club, and John Stubbs and Barry Durbidge, of Tadmorton Heath Golf Club near Banbury.

The Envile duo will travel to Portugal for the £41,450, Coca-Cola and Pestana Resorts supported National Pro-Am grand final which will be played at the Vila Sol resort in the Algarve between September 20 and 21.

Dudley-based Kingsbury, 19, is a former junior captain at Envile who is working as a trainee draughtsman before going to university in the Netherlands to study maths.

He plays off a handicap of five and has not ruled out a career in golf but wants to complete his studies first, adding: "Even if I am at university in September, this final will take priority now. Don't worry about that, I'll be there!"
